Disaster Loans Made Available to Rain-Drenched Princetonians

Although it may not be true that the Federal government is about to declare Princeton part of The Great Swamp, it is indeed true that most householders looked out into the yard over the weekend half expecting to see Spanish moss swinging from the trees.

There was some cheer in the fact that Township residents whose homes or places of business were damaged in the August floods learned this week that they can apply to the Small Business Administration for disaster loans under the Disaster Relief Act. Details are available in Township Hall.

More than three inches of rain fell on Princeton in three days: from the start of the rain on Friday to 9 a.m. Monday, the rainfall was 3.55 inches, recorded by David Ludlum of Science Associates. Mr. Ludlum's science associate Daniel Mazzarella, whose rain gauge is about a mile away, recorded 3.32 inches in the same interval.

"It is excessive, unquestionably," said Mr. Ludlum, as he got out a change of raincoats in preparation for Tropical Storm Heidi. "It would be normal to have 4.5 inches for the whole month of September — and here we had more than three inches in only three days.

Princeton, this time, was not hit as hard as other places. They had seven inches in Passaic, where the Saddle River overflowed. And the Raritan overflowed again in Bound Brook, giving that community its second knock-out punch in two weeks.

The weekend rain wasn't related to any tropical storm, Mr. Ludlum reports. It was a weather system that got stalled. Then the wind swung around into the southeast, which always means a lot of wet from warm tropical air. The air itself was supercharged with moisture, and every time a lifting current cooled the air, "it whacked the moisture out of it," the weatherman says. That's the reason for all the intermittent rain of Saturday and Sunday.

Householders fighting mold, mushrooms and mildew may have felt grumpy, but Princeton police were relatively cheerful: the weekend wet just couldn't be compared to the deluge of August 27.

Mercer Road had to be closed from Monday noon until later that afternoon, and of course Quaker Road, that famous old low spot, was closed, too. They barricaded that one off on Sunday.

If home-owners did have flooding problems, they kept them like skeletons in the family cupboard: very few people called police.

Traffic out of Pennington leading toward Princeton had been closed and the weekend rains flooded the detour.

The only way to get out of Pennington was along the Federal City-Blackwell-Cold Soil-Carter route, and workers headed for Monday morning jobs, chiefly those driving to ETS on Rosedale Road, were backed up for about a mile from the Cold Soil-Carter intersection. A telephone company man with a flag led drivers out into the semi-blind intersection.

The Small Business Administration disaster loans are for the purpose of restoring a victim's personal

JOUSTING BEGINS
In Municipal Races. Elections aren't far away and campaign time is here. This means, in Princeton, that the best place to hear exchanges between the candidates is in various municipal meetings, Borough or Township. Candidates are sometimes new faces in the audience. They start to attend meetings as soon as they are nominated in early summer, and they come faithfully. It's a pretty general rule, over the years, that they stop coming if they are defeated on Election Day.

This year, in both Princeton, the Democrats are in and the Republicans are out and trying to get in. So it's Republicans out in the audience, politely asking questions of the Democrats up front. Loyal Democratic office-holders who aren't running this year allow their colleagues to have the floor and make the replies. It's very polite; an outsider would never have guessed from attending Tuesday's Borough Council meeting that Democratic Councilmen John Strange and Alice Male were replying to their opponents, Republican contenders Arthur Morgan and Thomas Cawley, but Mr. Morgan and Mr. Cawley were in the audience, and it was a very genteel give-and-take evening.

In the Township, Republican candidates Barbara Smoyer and John Kuser have been attending meetings of Committee or Planning Board and asking questions of incumbents James A. Floyd and Thomas Hartmann. For the voter who wants information, it can be more informative than formal debate. The only thing is, you have to go to all those meetings.

The United Fund Story

A four-page report from the United Fund, detailing its numerous services through member agencies to the greater Princeton area, is a part of this issue of TOWN TOPICS. It provides in easy-to-read fashion facts on just where the dollars are needed, and why unanimous support is essential to its success. See pages 45 to 48.

Referendum OK'd. Council voted 5-0 (Robert Hendry absent) to place on the November ballot for voters to decide the question of whether Councilmen should receive $750 a year in pay. They receive nothing now, although they can collect for legitimate expenses. The question doesn't come under the wage-price freeze, so long as Councilmen don't actually receive the pay.

Rentals. Council passed 4-1 two ordinances relating to rental housing. (Public hearing October 12.) Because the Borough has so many more rental units than the Township, the ordinances had a more difficult birth than they did across the line. They will be up for public hearing in the Township next Monday, following an easy introduction last week.

"The Borough has an abnormally high rental population," observed Mr. Strange, introducing the measures, "more than the New Jersey average."

The measures require the registration of all rental units, including those of the University, each year on January 1, with a "beefing up" of inspection, as Mr. Strange put it. The ordinance now requiring inspection hasn't been enforced, he said, because there hasn't been enough time or manpower, or knowledge of exactly where all rental units are.

Arthur Morgan asked how the ordinance would be enforced and how much enforcement would cost. Mr. Strange said the measure didn't encompass elaborate enforcement machinery, and he pointed out that building code violations are often enforced because tenants complain.

Voluntary - or Not? "If people comply with this ordinance and do register, we'll need only a secretary," replied Councilman Male. "If they don't comply, we may need a full-time inspector. It may cost something, but it's worth it."

The anguished question, in the Borough even more than in the Township, what about illegal apartments? How many are there, in clear violation of zoning ordinances and probably of housing and health codes?

"If you've converted your house to apartments illegally, there's only one answer: don't register!" said Mr. Strange with some bitterness.

Mrs. Male suggested a five-year period of amnesty. If an owner had converted his home to illegal apartments five or more years ago, he might not be penalized under the zoning laws. She added that registration might buttress the arguments of people who want to change the zoning laws so that conversions are allowed.

When Murray Medvin, 27 Leavitt Lane, suggested that the Borough, by compelling a properly-owned owner to register, might be forcing a man to testify against himself, Borough attorney Gordon Griffin said, "All he has to do is pocket the door-key and stop renting, and he's in the clear."

Councilman Martin P. Lombardo said he'd like to stiffen the ordinance by compelling the registration of all apartments as soon as they are vacant, with a $500 fine for neglecting. This would open up available apartments to minority groups now shut out, he charged, by landlords who don't let people know the premises are for rent.

Disaster Loans Available (Continued from Cover)

property, home or business property as nearly as possible to the condition it was in before the disaster struck.

The maximum the SBA can lend to repair a home is limited to the amount of damage, less whatever insurance the home owner has. In any case, the SBA won't lend more than $50,000. In addition, the SBA may lend up to $10,000 to repair or replace household goods or personal property.

The Loan Formula. People who don't yet know how much of their loss may be covered by insurance may possibly be granted a loan by the SMA for the full amount of the loss. The amount is then paid back when the insurance comes through. Loans, incidentally, may be limited to the amount the applicant can pay back, as indicated by his earnings.

A "fact sheet" on these loans is in the Administrator's Office, Township Hall. The actual loan applications should be made to the Small Business Administration office for Mercer County, Room 2, Armory Building, Trenton (Civic Center). The telephone number is 392-3441, extensions 387, 367 and 370.

Some Duplication. The ordinance setting up a fee schedule for obtaining a certificate of occupancy from the Board of Health turned out to be exactly the same as the present Borough ordinance passed in 1967, except for those fees, and for provisions excluding people who rent out rooms in their own homes, and excluding hotels.

Mr. Cornforth protested that standards set for obtaining a certificate of occupancy were too high: "They require a landlord to keep an apartment at 70 degrees if it's zero out side, and that's too stiff a standard," he declared. The ordinance's standards are tied to the state's housing code.

Digging through the minutes of Borough Council four years ago, Mr. Strange discovered that Mr. Cornforth had voted for the '67 ordinance. "This shows that serving on Council is an educating experience," Mr. Cornforth observed, and voted "no."

IAP. A petition signed by 36 residents of the Charlton Chestnut Nassau area was presented by Administrator Robert F. Mooney. The petitioners protested establishment of the Institute for Applied Psychotherapy's drug treatment center in that area. It has been reported, but not confirmed, that IAP had a location nearby.

Petitioners cited the residential character of the neighborhood, the presence of many elderly people, St. Paul's Church and St. Paul's school as reasons for protest.

"The whole town is essentially residential," observed Mayor Robert W. Cawley. "I am sorry IAP is not welcome there. I am sure we can find a place."

He reported that final details on an IAP advisory board and a location, are being worked on.

Ice Skating, Safe Style

An ice-skating rink 100 feet square will be laid down sometime in November on the grounds of John Witherspoon School, announced William Karch, the schools' manager of physical facilities this week.

Safe? The ice will be only three inches deep. The rink is non-brittle polyethylene plastic, arranged on a wooden frame. Lay it down close to a firehydrant and fill 'er up. When the freeze comes, you've got a rink.

The Raven Rink Liner is made in South Dakota, where winter lasts from Labor Day to the Fourth of July, and whether it will accommodate itself to Central New Jersey is a question. Mr. Karch is optimistic.

down, 3-2, an ordinance on emergency powers. Paralleling a similar ordinance recently enacted in the Township, it would have given the mayor, in consultation with Council, the power to declare emergencies, and to proclaim curfews, shut off streets and so on, in case of mob action, riot, or destruction "causing injury to people or property."

The vote was Councilmen Strange, Lombardo and Joseph Moore against, and Mrs. Male and Mr. Cornforth in favor.

New Fire Truck? Councilman Moore, who is fire commissioner, reported a forthcoming joint meeting with the Township next Wednesday to talk about purchase of a second pumper for Engine Company No. Three.

Councilman Lombardo reported that plans are being made for a young people's march against hunger, timed to coincide with United Nations observances in October.

New PHS Principal Deals Firmly with First-Day Violence

Half a dozen Princeton High School boys and one girl were beaten last Wednesday on the first day of school, apparently as a result of freshman hazing that got out of hand.

Following talks Wednesday night with parents of students suspected of doing the beating, Principal Patricia Wertheimer went on the school's public address system early Thursday morning and spoke to the whole student body.

She said that parents of students who had injured other students, "are in complete agreement with me that such actions must not be tolerated in the school."

"I will continue to meet with parents of students who threaten or harm others and will press charges in any case of repeated acts of this kind," Dr. Wertheimer told the student body.

Started by hazing. According to accounts, the usual minor hazing of freshmen — smearing lipstick on boys' faces and so on — erupted inexplicably. It was compounded by a computer failure which caused many students' schedules to be chaotic, so that students were wandering aimlessly in the halls.

Superintendent Philip E. McPherson declined to call it racial tension; it was mostly black upperclassmen attacking young black freshmen, he said, although there was at least one incident of a black student attacking a white student. He said he did not know of any case in which a white attacked a black.

All involved were boys, except for one senior girl who was apparently a victim because she inadvertently got in the way.

Dr. McPherson and Dr. Wertheimer estimated six to eight known victims, mostly with black eyes and painful bruises. Other victims may not have cared to report their injuries, the Superintendent suspects.

Parents informed. Dr. Wertheimer went to the homes of students thought to have been attackers and talked with parents for several hours. Wednesday evening. In her address to students on Thursday, she reported, "In every case, these parents were glad that they had been informed of this unrest in the school and their children's part in it."

Also on Wednesday night, Dr. McPherson called parents of children who had been beaten. "We wanted them to know we wouldn't stand for this," he said. "Every single parent I talked to was helpful. I even had parents thanking us."

In her Thursday statement to students, Dr. Wertheimer conceded that scheduling troubles had contributed to the tension. Then she asked students and teachers to spend First Period talking over ways to bring about "the kind of school we all want."

"We have a school which can be a great one," she told the students, "but we are in danger of losing everything that could make it become so. All of us want a school we can be proud of. None of us will tolerate a school that is not safe for every student."

Responsibility for making such a school, she said, largely rests with students.

Later Thursday, all black students and black members of the staff were invited to attend a meeting. It was led by Don Evans and William Cook of the English department, Marvin Trotman of the guidance staff and Len Brown of Community House and the Princeton Youth Center.

School was relatively normal for the rest of Thursday, and no new incidents have been reported.

Coalition Seeks Municipal Support

Leon Zullo apparently having departed for parts unknown, the Conservation Coalition is seeking help from Borough and Township governments to continue its recycling program beyond December.

Mr. Zullo had provided the trucks and drivers to haul away all the recyclable material collected once a month at the Facility Road parking lot. With his sudden disappearance, the coalition was forced to cancel the September recycling. The West Windsor program has also been halted.

At a meeting last week, coalition members unanimously agreed that the program should become a municipal responsibility. In a plan submitted to the Joseph Hodak, Township engineer, last June, the organization committed itself to continue the program through December, with the hope it could develop a satisfactory arrangement with Borough and Township in the intervening months.

Mrs. Toba Stutz, who handles recycling for the West Windsor Environmental Protection League, described an operation in Hemstead, Long Island, a community of 800,000, where the municipal government is actually making a profit of $100 a week collecting newspaper door-to-door with municipal trucks and drivers. In addition the town does not have to pay to dispose of the trash elsewhere. The paper is brought to the Homesote Company in Trenton to be recycled.

To learn more about the operation the coalition has invited William J. Landman, Deputy Commissioner of the Department of Public Works in Hempstead, to speak here next week.

In the meantime, recycling collections will be resumed next month; the date will be announced next week.

DECISION THIS WEEK
On PCH Site. By the time the drainage and the lot lines and the parking spaces were all lined up last Wednesday, it was several minutes into Thursday, and the Regional Planning Board decided not to hold an executive session.

Instead, they scheduled the executive session for this Wednesday hoping they can come to decisions on Princeton Community Housing. Thanel Corporation's subdivision request and Princeton Theological Seminary's faculty housing development on Mt. Lucas.

They did approve last Wednesday the six-lot subdivision on Terhune Road presented by three property-owners: Bertrand E. Bennison, Richard K. Anderson and John Ellis. The subdivision will be entered by a cul-de-sac road off Terhune. Three of the lots can be built on; the others already have dwellings.

The planners also approved the University's off-street parking plans for Princeton Inn College.

Housing. PCH's planning board appearance is in two parts: subdivision approval and site plan approval. Architects have added some features since the site plan was first before the board. Recreation and drainage are the chief new categories.

Philetus H. Holt, architect, described close-to-home play areas for children 4 to 10 years old within the circles in front of each "village" of houses. Log structures, pre-cast concrete play equipment and so on would be there.

For older children, a tenants' committee would make specific plans, but the architects see informal play fields along the Transcontinental Pipeline swath that bisects the project. The swath is not wide enough for a formal baseball or softball diamond, Mr. Holt said.

The Township Zoning Board has already frowned on use of the pipeline area for play, but the architects hesitate to chop down the woods for playing fields, Mr. Holt said. The Township wants the pipeline used for "passive" recreation. ("How," asked Mrs. Barbara Diamond, Walnut Lane, "will you explain to kids who want to play on that open pipeline area that the Zoning Board doesn't want them to?"

A Joggers' Haven. Walks will be laid in a winding pattern through the project, some going through the buildings. Most of them will wind through the woods, and Mr. Holt sees them as a haven for joggers.

A large building will be provided for community use, and here again, specific uses will be determined by a tenants' committee. A day care center for children might be here. Mr. Holt suggested, and activities for the elderly as well. At present, there is no money for a swimming pool, though space is being reserved for one.

Drainage took on added meaning at Wednesday's meeting because of the devastating effects of the Doria-linked storm, referred to as a "100-year storm," meaning that one like it occurs only once a century.

PCH plans two retention basins to catch the flow from a network of pipes. Basins would be big enough to cope with a 15-26-year rainfall. Mr. Holt said, and would be designed to "leak" downstream at a controlled rate. The control would prevent ecological damage, he stated.

Ponds, Too. The two basins would actually be ponds, fenced and screened for safety. Mr. Holt told the board that both Joseph Hadak, Township Engineer, and Ian Walker, executive director of the Stony Brook - Millstone Watershed Association, approved the concept of the retention basins. The area involved is so small the state doesn't have to give a permit, Mr. Holt said.

"Leakage" from the basins would only make the streams below "insignificantly larger," he added.

Subdivision involves combining lands now owned by William H. Hahn and Trinity Church, under option to PCH. There is also a disputed five-acre slice, but PCH hasn't used this portion in its development plans so that even if PCH ends up not owning the slice, the housing project is in the clear, so far as setbacks and the like, are concerned.

Thanet Corporation, whose spokesman is Ridgely Cook, owns 30 acres on Terhune and around the corner on North Harrison in the zone now called Engineering, soon to be re-labeled Office-Research. He wants to carve out five separate lots which he can sell.

The Planning Board has previously told Mr. Cook that Thanet had to construct a holding pond — similar to PCH's retention basins — on the Terhune side. Mr. Cook wants to harmonize his own construction plans with the Planning Board's request.

He will also appear this Thursday at the Township Zoning Board for a variance. The lot he has on Harrison is only 313 feet wide and the frontage requirement is 330 feet.

HOUSING STUDIES

Conversions? Apartments? A relaxation of Township zoning in regard to apartments and roomers was considered in detail Monday night at the regular September meeting of the Township Planning Board.

Discussion is related to the on-going job of the Township's planners, which is to up-date the municipality's zoning ordinance.

Abbot Low Moffat, Planning Board member, presented a proposal. Many elderly people, he said, may need both a live-in companion and the additional income such a person could provide through rental. He added that many elderly persons are being driven out of the community, and he suggested that allowing older people to convert their single-family homes to apartments or "flats" would ease the economic burden and also provide housing.

The board is scheduled to have one more work session on the question this month.

MAYOR APPREHENSIVE

On Lake Future. Removal of silt from Lake Carnegie is a fine thing, commented Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley this week, but he urged conservation groups to make sure the silt doesn't sift back in over the years.

Rain in record proportions has plagued this part of the world for the past three weeks, lately without the assistance of any of the tropical storms that are part of the weather map.

A slightly cooler and much drier climate is forecast for the immediate future as a front born all the way out in the Pacific heads across the country. Its arrival Thursday may be marked by clouds and possible showers but the Man holds out considerable promise for a very pleasant weekend.

otherwise," he stated, adding that Princeton University might not be "lucky enough" 35 years from now to find a donor willing to pay the bill. The operation scheduled to begin soon is being financed by an anonymous gift. Mayor Cawley questioned the efficiency of the silting dams designed to prevent undue silting. "If you've seen Stony Brook lately," he said with some grimness, "if that isn't silt, what is?"

NAMED TO BOARD

Teacher, for Recreation Group. William Cirullo, 34 Humbert Street, has been appointed to the Joint Recreation Commission for a four-year term. Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley announced the appointment this week.

ENROLLMENT A RECORD

For New University Year. Nassau Street, looking a little more clogged than usual with both cars and pedestrians, demonstrates the fact that the vanguard of the largest student body in Princeton University's 225-year history, a freshman class totalling more than 1,100 men and women, has arrived.

By the time the last upper-classmen and women and graduate students have registered — classes begin Monday, September 20 — the University's student population is expected to number something over 5,400, a new record.

Undergraduates should total just under 4,000, up from last year's figure of slightly better than 3,600. The increases numbers are due almost entirely to the greater numbers of undergraduate women, which this year will come to about 730.

With this, Princeton will have exceeded its first projected coeducation timetable, announced in the spring of 1969, which called for the enrollment of 650 women by 1973-74. It is now anticipated that there will be about 1,100 women enrolled by fall 1973, and 1,200 the following year.

Along with the freshmen arriving on campus last weekend are some 150 transfer students. The orientation program for all new students began formally on Tuesday morning with a meeting in Alexander Hall, at which President Robert F. Goheen — beginning his 15th and final year as Princeton's chief executive — spoke, along with Dean of the College Edward D. Sullivan and Undergraduate Assembly President David Jones, a senior from Detroit, Mich.

63% from Public Schools. Some 810 men and 327 women have indicated to the Admission Office that they will enter Princeton this fall with the Class of 1975. Nine out of ten of them ranked in the top fifth of their class in secondary school.

They come from over 450 public and private schools, 63 percent from public schools, 37 percent from private. Just

This Detour Will Stay A While

That pleasant little detour that takes motorists around the washed out section of the Pennington-Bocky Hill Road in Hopewell Township will be in effect for several more weeks. That is, of course, when it isn't flooded out by high water (as happened earlier this week), forcing drivers to find yet another route.

James B. DiLouie, Assistant County Engineer for Bridges, said Tuesday he hoped to meet this week with an inspection team of federal officials to discuss federal aid. Mr. DiLouie estimates replacement cost at around $27,000.

Until the county has explored the possibility of federal aid for repairing the damage, work on the bridge will not begin. However, Mr. DiLouie commented that if the aid question gets tied up for an appreciable length of time, the County would go ahead with the work and seek reimbursement later. It can also simply appropriate the money out of its own emergency fund. Funds from the state might also be a possibility.

Mr. DiLouie could give no estimate on how long the work would take, once underway, because he has not decided what to have built. A somewhat more elaborate structure may be built, if he deems it necessary to take future road widening possibilities into account.

In the meantime, motorists are reminded that Moore's Mill Road, in its present condition, will reduce the life of their car's tires by 50% if they go much more than 15 mph. The detour should be cherished for its scenic value.

under half of the freshmen will be receiving some form of student aid — in the form of either scholarships, jobs, or low-interest loans.

Black students in the freshman class should number just under 90 — with 55 men and 32 women having said they are planning to come to Princeton. This will bring the black student population in the University's undergraduate body to approximately 300.

Mathematics heads the list of fields in which the freshmen have expressed an interest in concentrating (Princeton's mathematics department last year was rated among the first in the nation for the effectiveness of its graduate program in a study by the American Council on Education). Other areas in which freshmen show most interest include biology, the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs, and English.

Following next Tuesday morning's meeting, new students will embark on an intensive program designed to further acquaint them with the array of curricular and extracurricular offerings at the University, through discussions with their advisors and a series of meetings and informal receptions. Princeton will officially begin its 226th academic year Sunday with the 11 a.m. opening exercises in the University Chapel.

CHANGES AHEAD

In Zoning, Rental Inspections. Two ordinances will be opened to public hearing next Monday at 8 p.m. when Township Committee gathers in Township Hall.

One is the rental registration and inspection package. The second is the ordinance updating the zoning regulations in Service, Office Research and Professional Office Zones.

Here are highlights of the zoning change:

Service Zones: These districts, in the Route 206-Mt. Lucas area and along Alexander Street, have been tightened, chiefly with the idea of making them community service zones designed to serve local residents.

The S-2 zone, along Mt. Lucas and Route 206, is where the controversial North Square office building was proposed. The new amendment eliminates office buildings from this zone. It does allow retail stores, hotels-motels, banks and savings and loan institutions, newspaper offices and printing plants.

The new regulations also prohibit the storage of buses or trucks, although the Service zones will still have various uses that involve both buses and trucks.

Suburban Transit, with garage space near Birch Avenue and John Streets, is the only bus truck storage enterprise in the township at present. Neighbors have frequently protested the existence of this business in a predominantly residential area.

Parking requirements have been changed also. The new Service Zone parking requirement is one parking space for every 200 square feet of gross floor area.

The amendment re-defines "gross floor area" in such a way that underground parking is encouraged. A builder who provides such parking receives credit in terms of gross floor area.

Professional Office Zone. The area along Harrison Street North and Franklin Avenue already has several professional offices and the new amendment would recognize the area for what it has become.

"Professional" is defined as medical doctor, dentist or optometrist only. The provision allows only one building on a lot and allows only a small professional sign as identification.

The Township's present five-acre requirement in the business zone hasn't attracted developers, so this 400-acre zone (Terhune, North Harrison, Mt. Lucas) is now being opened to a cluster-style development, if the builder wishes.

Under this plan, no fewer than five and not more than ten acres could be clustered. What the Township seeks are small clusters, perhaps with pooled parking, like a common garage.

Several owners might be involved in planning the cluster, and a building could be sold, along with its parking rights to a law firm, possibly, or to an interior decorator or to someone else who wanted space but did not care to buy five acres and put up a building.

TEACHER GRANTS HALTED

By Wilson Foundation. Lack of funds has caused the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation to suspend competition for 1972 college graduates.

The fellowships, originally established in 1945, as a Princeton University program, are designed to provide first year support of graduate students who plan to go into college teaching.

"We are quite determined and hopeful that we can get going again," Dr. Hans Rosenhaupt, foundation president said this week. The decision to suspend competition for the fellowships was made on June 30.

This year more than 8,000 college seniors applied for the 305 fellowships awarded. Of the 305 fellows, 85 received financial support from other foundations or the Government, with the Wilson foundation providing $2,000 stipend and a $1,000 tuition award for each of the others. A total of 220 getting financial support from the foundation also received scholarships from their graduate schools for tuition not covered by the $1,000 grant.

To Study Alternatives. "This is going to be a year of soul-searching and self study for us," H. Ronald Rouse, national director said. "We are looking at the alternatives and at the other needs of society that should be filled."

The Woodrow Wilson Fellowships were centered at Princeton University until the early 1950's when Carnegie Corporation of New York and the General Education Board provided financial support for more than 100 national awards a year. The fellowships were then administered by the American Association of Universities.

The Ford Foundation gave the program $24.5 million a year for five years, beginning in 1957. A second five-year grant of $27.5 million was made in 1962. During this period, more than 1,300 fellows were named annually, with about 1,000 receiving financial aid. The fellowships at that time provided full tuition as well as a stipend of $1,500, plus family allowances.

The Ford focus changed to $500,000 grants to ten major universities in an effort to shorten the time of graduate study and to produce more scholars in the social sciences and the humanities, according to Mrs. Marian Chamberlain, program officer in higher education for Ford.

The Wilson foundation awarded an average of 1,000 fellowships a year from 1967 to 1970, although it provided funds to only 150 fellows a year. Other groups, such as the Avalon foundation, the Old Dominion Foundation and the Merrill Trust, as well as the government gave support. The Ford Foundation awarded an average of $1.5 million a year to cover administrative expenses.

POLICE ARREST WOMAN

For Passing Bad Checks. A 30-year-old woman was arrested Friday by Det. Timothy Huizing and Sgt. Arthur Gallant in connection with the passing of two bogus checks in the Borough.

Beverly Barge, no known address, was charged with passing an $85 check at the First National Bank and a second for $90 at the Morris Maple paint store on Nassau Street. Both, police said, were signed by "Barbara Taylor", a Camden resident whose identification Miss Barge had stolen.

She was charged with possession of stolen checks and taken to Mercer County Jail where she is currently being held. Princeton police report that she is wanted in a half-dozen other communities in the state for check passing.

CANOE IS STOLEN

But Culprits Are Sighted. Mrs. Morris Mayers, 41 Adams Drive, called police last week to report the theft of a fiberglass canoe from her back yard. In its place, she said, the thieves had left an old row boat.

She and Ptl. Harry W. Morton searched the lakefront area and recognized the canoe being paddled on Carnegie Lake near the Washington Rd. bridge. Ptl. Morton brought the pair to Township headquarters, charged them with larceny and later released

On Walnut Lane. Ten dollars, an American flag and a brown holster with shells were stolen last week from the home of Irby D. Huston, 459 Walnut Lane.

Township police said that the house was entered through an unlocked sliding front door. Nothing else was taken or disturbed, according to the investigating officer, Ptl. Olin do Carnevale.

TWO NABBED IN STORE

For Shoplifting. Two juvenile girls from the Borough were arrested Monday afternoon for shoplifting in Bellows, 210 Nassau Street.

They were processed by the Borough juvenile officer and released to their parents. Police said that the pair allegedly tried to shoplift garments valued at $148.

According to Lt. Michael Carnevale, their arrest was the "direct result" of a previous attempt that day to shoplift at another women's shop in the Borough. Suspecting them, the store called the police and described the girls. Police, in turn, activated the Merchant Alert Plan which led to the girls' detection.

REPUBLICANS START CAMPAIGN: Township Republican candidate Mrs. Barbara Smoyer and John Kuser pose symbolically in front of Township Hall, where they hope one day to be in an official capacity. Both are in the running for Township Committee.

continuing student interest are: ceramics, tailoring for women, folk guitar for beginners, intermediates and advanced, landscape design for the home, oil painting for the beginner, drawing, bookbinding, typing, tennis, furniture refinishing and restoring, refrigeration and air conditioning, steam plant operation, high school equivalency program leading to a certificate, sewing for beginners, experimental sculpture, etc.

Immediate registration for all classes is urged by the trustees as classes fill up quickly. Car pools are advised wherever possible as parking is limited near the school. Students are also advised to leave ample time for parking and walking to their classes, as some will have to walk some distance to the high school itself.

POLITICS BEGINS

Republicans Make Statements. It looks as though the North Square office building might become a Township campaign issue.

At a press conference held last week to launch their campaign, Township Republican candidates Barbara Smoyer and John Kuser pointed out that North Square, as a rateable, was rejected by a strict party-line vote on the part of Township Committeemen; three Democrats turned it down and two Republicans voted in favor.

"North Square wasn't a heavy, dirty industrial building, not a 'bad' neighbor at all," Mr. Kuser declared.

"The attitude toward seeking rateables could be much stronger," Mrs. Smoyer added.

Taxes, Mr. Kuser said the Township hadn't kept up with the demand for more services by seeking out rateables to pay for them. He conceded that it was difficult to find rateables, considering Township geology and geography.

"Rateables go over the line to other municipalities who get the taxes while we get all the traffic," he said.

Taxes, drugs and housing were the chief concerns of Township residents he has interviewed, the candidate said.

Drugs. On the drug question, Mr. Kuser said of the Institute for Applied Psychotherapy program, "I'd have voted to give it a try."

Mrs. Smoyer was more cautious: "I'm a bit concerned about the training of these young people who will be running the program."

Both candidates expressed desire for a single, overall agency responsible for drug program co-ordination in Princeton.

"We need government control, either under the Boards of Health or a single, overall group," Mrs. Smoyer declared.

Housing. On housing, Mr. Kuser said he would push for conversions, if elected; that is, changing zoning regulations to allow home-owners to convert their houses to apartment use of some kind.

Mrs. Smoyer suggested that a private developer constructing luxury apartments could provide homes for well-to-do retired persons, and taxes for the Township as well.

Both candidates said they supported Princeton Community Housing Inc., and its plans for low- and middle-income housing. Before endorsing any additional units of this kind they said they wanted to see how well the demand is met by POH, the University's proposed 200 apartment units, plus construction in neighboring towns.

A nine-point platform gave housing the Number One position. The candidates also supported direct government responsibility of drug-control programs; supported clean air and water; urged "low-cost, ecologically sound regional solutions" to waste disposal; promised to "brake the rise in taxes which has accelerated under the current administration; promised to hunt for rateables; pledged "increased attention" to youth; urged further development of open

ART ASSOCIATION NAMES OFFICERS: Mrs. Vincent F. Novak (left) will serve as secretary of the Princeton Art Association for 1971-72, with Mrs. John W. Gaylord the vice-president and William W. Augustine, president. Mrs. Henry M. Gallagher (not shown) is treasurer. For complete information on the Association's courses to be offered this fall, see pages 40 and 41.

Squad in its life saving work will be displayed in Palmer Square this Saturday marking the opening of the organization's fund raising drive.

This community service exists entirely on the contributions of the Princeton area public. Over the 30 years they have been serving the area, many lives have been spared by their diligence and dedication. The First Aid and Rescue Squad has its own building on North Harrison Street and is in radio communication 24 hours each day through their own facilities and those of the area police.

There are 30 senior members who serve in the organization and 15 cadet members who are being trained to continue the service. The squad is also recruiting senior and cadet members at this time.

Contributions to the maintenance of the service are welcome as well as inquiries about serving with the organization. These should be sent to the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad, P.O. Box 528, Princeton. For information on joining the organization call 924-3338.

WORKSHOP BEGINS

For YWCA Festival. The Festival Crafts Workshop for the Princeton YWCA International Festival began on Tuesday in the Crafts Room at the YWCA. It will meet each Tuesday thereafter for six weeks for a two-three hour period.

The Workshop is under the direction of Mrs. Rosanna Jacks. There will also be international guest teachers who will give instructions on how various holiday decorations are made in their countries.

The finished items will be sold at the twenty-third annual YWCA International Festival to be held in Princeton on November 6 and 7.

A person does not have to be a member of the YWCA to participate in the workshop activities. A nursery is provided to assist the mother of children between the ages of one through five.

For further information, please call Mrs. Rosanna Jacks, Workshop Chairman, 921-9218, or Alice McElhinney, YWCA staff member, 924-4825, Ext. 26.

Registration Still Open. Registrations for the fall term of the YWCA are still being accepted. Some classes still have openings, and persons may register for these up until the first scheduled meeting date -- Wednesday, September 22.

For classes that are filled, a person may request her name to be placed on a waiting list.

This fall the YWCA is offering more than 100 classes, clubs, or activity selections with financial assistance available to those in need. Nursery rooms are also available for mothers who participate in a YWCA class or activity at the buildings on Avalon Place or for designated classes outside the YWCA.

Marian F. McKeever is Executive Director of the YWCA and Sybil Sim is President of the Board of Directors.

FALL LECTURES TO BEGIN

For Historical Society. The Historical Society of Princeton will begin its fall lecture series Tuesday. Mrs. Louise C. Belden, Assistant Curator of the Henry Francis duPont Winterthur Museum, will give an illustrated talk on "Fun and Games in the 18th Century."

Mrs. Belden received her B.A. degree from Wellesley and her M.A. in American Studies from the University of Delaware. At the Winterthur Museum, located in Winterthur, Delaware, she administers the Ineson-Bissell Collection of small silver objects. She also lectures throughout the country and writes numerous articles for such publications as Antiques Magazine.

This lecture, to be held at 8 p.m. at the Engineering Quadrangle, Olden Street, is scheduled to complement an exhibit "Fun and Games" at the Society's headquarters, Bainbridge House, 158 Nassau Street. This exhibit of cribbage boards, backgammon sets, game and score boards and 100 counters began this week and is open to the public. The next lecture in the Fall Series of four programs will

MESTRES TO RESIGN

When Goheen Leaves. Ricardo A. Mestres, Financial Vice-President and Treasurer, Princeton University, has asked the Trustees of the University to accept his resignation effective at the same time as President Robert F. Goheen's — that is, no later than next June.

Next month, Mr. Mestres, 61 years old, will have completed 25 years of service at Princeton. 19 of them in his current capacity as the University's principal business and financial officer.

Since 1946, the year in which he joined the administration, the University budget, for which he is responsible, has increased from $6,000,000 to $77,664,000. Endowment and other funds (not including the physical plant) had a market value of approximately $498,000,000 as of June 30.

Mr. Mestres said that for some time he had felt that he had given Princeton his utmost and that he wanted to seek some other occupation and a fresh set of challenges for the remainder of his productive life. He said further that he had discussed the matter several times in the past three years with President Goheen but had each time been persuaded to continue at Princeton for the duration of President Goheen's own time in office.

With the search for President Goheen's successor now in progress, Mr. Mestres said he was determined to proceed with his long-held intent to seek some new set of responsibilities and that he had so informed members of the Board of Trustees last spring. In addition, Mr. Mestres emphasized his belief that the new president should have a free hand in choosing a chief financial officer to work with him.

President Goheen said: "I can appreciate Mr. Mestres' desire for the change and challenge of some new career, and certainly he deserves to have what he wants. Princeton has been extraordinarily fortunate to have had him as its principal financial and business officer these past 19 years.

"He has brought to his duties a strong combination of genuine sensitivity to the basic purpose of the University together with sound and expert business sense. Words cannot adequately express my own regard for him both as a colleague and as a friend. No president could wish for a more able, dedicated, or congenial financial vice-president. There simply are none finer."

School Closing Procedure

When the weather or other emergency make the closing of the Princeton Regional School system advisable, announcement will be made over radio station WHWH as soon as the decision is made.

The most probable hour for an early closing, according to the office of the associate superintendent, will be 1 p.m. Most children will leave at the dismissal hour; all others as soon as their buses reach the school. Whenever possible, lunch will be served prior to dismissal.

Parents are urged to make plans with friends and neighbors for their children to be met at their homes during emergencies.

BOGUS BILLS ON VIEW

At First National Bank. An exhibit of counterfeit currency is on display at the main office of The First National Bank of Princeton, in the form of a quiz that challenges the viewer to distinguish between real and bogus bills.

The display has six genuine and six bogus bills in denominations of one to one hundred dollars and includes an explanation of how to detect the counterfeit.

According to John F. Hoff, president of First National, the display is a valuable educational tool. "Most people," he said, "have never been taught how to spot a counterfeit bill and few have ever even seen one."

The exhibit was prepared by The First National City Bank of New York in cooperation with the U. S. Treasury Department which loaned the counterfeit bills.

Rental Ordinance Attached.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
As a Johnny-come lately, I must confess that I don't have the slightest idea as to how the municipal government in Princeton is organized; in whom the tax power is residing; if there is any chance for the people to raise any objections to the ever increasing tax rate and many of the unreasonable and unrealistic ordinances the local government has made or is making if the people are only represented by four Committeemen plus a part-time Mayor.

I am always wondering how the people in Princeton are so tame and good-natured regarding the many important questions with which they are so vitally concerned.

America is a great democracy, not a police state. Its legal system was built upon the basis of the Common Law. One of the most fundamental principles in the Common Law is that one's home is his castle, subject to no interferences from outside unless there is some offense committed therein and definitely proved before any action could be taken by the authorities.

As I view the situation in Princeton, much to my regret I found that many of the fundamental rights of the people have been encroached upon by the local government.

The latest example is furnished in a report in the September 2, 1971 issue of your esteemed paper to the effect that an ordinance requiring registration and certificates of occupation, new and existing, of all rental units in town will be passed in the coming Committee meeting and take effect on January 1, 1972.

An inspection fee will be charged on the property owners. In making that ordinance, the township authority is seemingly presuming that every rental unit is potentially unlawful and unfit for human habitation and therefore an inspection is needed and a fee is charged on the owner. In my humble opinion, the said ordinance is not only bothersome and disturbing to the public but also constitutes another violence of the principle in the law, namely, "Everybody is presumed to be innocent until the contrary is shown."

May I say that there are many priorities to be done in the town and I do hope the local government will not pay too much attention to those petty unimportant things the legality of which is very much in doubt. I remember that the Supreme Court of the United States has rendered a decision a few years ago that no municipal employees could enter into the people's home without a court order. I want to know if the local government is prepared to arm itself with hundreds of court orders for the purpose.

I am writing this letter to register my strong protest over the ordinance in question. I wish to be enlightened by the people in town in general and the members of the local Bar Association in particular in care of this esteemed paper. Thank you very much.

Stop Work on Sewer Plans.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

The League of Women Voters of the Princeton Area is studying the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Plans because of our longterm interest in environmental matters. We were pleased that the Princeton Borough Council, the Princeton Township Committee, and the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority passed resolutions encouraging the State of New Jersey to make a complete basin study as required by the 1971 Guidelines for Water Quality Management Planning published by the Federal Environmental Protection Agency.

We are aware that the basin study has begun and that the U. S. Geological Survey is currently doing a quantitative water study of the Stony Brook region. We are concerned, however, that the contracted ted engineers, the firm of Metcalf and Eddy, are currently formulating plans for the project, even though the preceding studies have not been completed.

If the results of the ecological studies show that the plans need to be re-drawn, much more time, effort, and expense will be necessary. Thus, it seems to us that the wisest course would be to ask the engineers to discontinue their work for the present time.

We would appreciate hearing from you on this matter as soon as possible. We are enclosing our Fact Sheet on the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority.

"Trash" Label Divisive . . .
To the Editor of Town Topics:

It is difficult to fault a man who sits on the Board of Education, serves as its president, and exhibits what at least seems to be a sincere interest in an innovative, liberal school system.

But his characterization as "trash" of recent advertisements regarding the school system brings to mind Spiro Agnew rather than Robert Bierman.

Although the material well might have deserved the epithet, one wonders whether the nominal leader of a school district already sorely beset by division might not have found a more constructive, less divisive way of expressing his reaction to ideas with which he disagrees.

Princeton's schools. "The more new forms of education have become a reality in Princeton," the superintendent observes ruefully, "the more difficult it has been for our staff to explain these new forms to parents and citizens."

Chief parent questions, during the Superintendent's coffees and listening-sessions last year, were:

- What are the goals of the schools and the roles of superintendent and board?
- What about evaluation and innovation?
- Student behavior?
- What are we doing toward sound business management?

Goals Listed. In his report, the superintendent touches all these. Overall goals, he says, are to help each student develop confidence, responsibility and competence.

He sees the board's role as the classic one of policy-making and his own as providing his colleague with resources, information and ideas to help them in their work, and joining them in asking basic questions about the schools.

On evaluation, he reveals the schools will this year review their use of old tests and begin to use some newer and improved testing approaches. He also urges a stronger evaluative role for teachers. Innovative programs, the superintendent suggests, can be "liberal" if they free people from "ineffective school practices" and "conservative" when they are based on conserving valuable things in the system. He urges "a good deal of latitude" for teachers, providing their efforts are consistent with the schools' goals, and that evaluation is part of the effort.

Cooperation Expected. Student behavior was discussed at a special principals' meeting, the superintendent reports. All principals understand, he says, that they are expected to join with teachers, students and parents in "a concerted attack on current problems of student behavior. I expect a full measure of adult responsibility — no 'bystanders to emergency' — all along the line in the schools," he declares.

He also underscores his belief that children must be helped to develop their own self-discipline and their sense of responsibility for their own behavior.

On business management, Dr. McPherson points to a fundamental overhauling of the finance office, following management advice from the auditors, Princeton businessmen and a national management consultant firm. Purchasing is partly done now through joint bids with the Borough, Township and state, and bidding for various jobs has increased 300% in the past two years.

In an oblique reference to recent criticisms, the superintendent urges residents to be wary of "fear-ridden demagoguery, irrelevant innuendo and personal attack — hardly fitting behavior for adult models of the children of Princeton."

"MR. CHARLEY"

At Youth Center. The Princeton Youth Center's Open House this Wednesday coincided with the Center's announcement of its first event of the season, a production of James Baldwin's "Blues for Mr. Charley."

The Hansberry Arts Workshop at the Center, will present the Baldwin play Friday and Saturday, October 1-2 and again October 9-10. The play, first presented in 1963 is loosely based on the murder of Emmett Till.

The cast of townspeople, University undergraduates, Princeton High School students and Trenton residents, is as follows: Bill Cook, Terry Steaple, Marianne Wallace, Carolyn Adams, Jeremy Steele, Beverly Hagy, Howard Sweeney Jr., Wyn Cooper, Tyrone Livingston, Charles Phillips, Bryan Freeman, David Mackey, Tony Townes and Gary David Lee. TRENTON FIREMAN DIES From Crash Injuries. A Trenton fireman died in Princeton Hospital Tuesday morning of injuries he received in a single car crash early Sunday morning.

Richard G. Kerwick apparently failed to make a curve on lower Alexander Street and struck the bridge abutment over the Raritan Canal. He received a skull fracture, fractured nose, facial bones and wrist. His car was a total loss.

The accident had been under investigation by Ptl. David Cromwell who was unable to talk to the driver following his admission to the hospital's intensive care unit. A hospital spokesman said that an autopsy would be performed.

Hills Trees on 206. Stephen H. Coutrie, 20, of Cinnaminson received minor injuries Saturday after his small car struck two trees off Route 206 near the intersection of Valley Road.

Mr. Coutrie, who was ticketed for having unsafe tires, told police that he was driving between 40 and 45 miles an hour when he failed to negotiate a curve and the car went out of control. The entire left side, hood and windshield of his car was damaged in the 8:30 p.m. accident.

CAMPAIGN HEAD NAMED By Borough Democrats. In their bid to capture the mayorship and retain control of Council, the Princeton Borough Democrats have selected 28-year-old Cathleen Litvack, 14 East Stanworth Drive, campaign manager.

Active on the political scene here since moving to Princeton five years ago, Mrs. Litvack will coordinate the activities and staff in the campaigns of Edward Schneider, who is seeking to unseat Republican Mayor Robert W. Cawley; Mrs. Alice Male and John Strange, both incumbent Council members, and Miss Mary Perone, the party's nominee for Tax Collector.

Mrs. Litvack, a Wellesley graduate and political science major, has been Democratic Committeewoman in the West End's District Eight for the past two years. She currently serves on the Executive Committee and assistant treasurer of the Princeton Community Democratic Association.

She has directed the tutoring program at the Princeton Study Center the last two years, and is a member of the Board of the University League. Her husband, James M. Litvack, is a lecturer and assistant dean of the faculty at the University.

A few words from Phil Cane on behalf of cheating at antiques.

There are two ways of getting the antiques you've always wanted: find them or make them. Our way is to make them. For several reasons. We can concentrate on museum-quality pieces. We can coordinate them with upholstered pieces and hand-crafted accessories. And we can create custom pieces to match your particular dream. (Thomas Jefferson didn't own a stereo. But you can own one that he'd like the looks of.) We've filled a showroom with creations and re-creations you'd like.

MEET THE TUTORS

At The Study Center, Princeton Study Center is seeking volunteers. To introduce potential tutors to the Center, it has singled out Lucy Scanlon and Kate Litvack "because they are good at what they do, because they are willing to be interviewed."

This is the beginning of the Princeton Study Center's tenth year, begun with a chronic shortage of math tutors, plans to introduce small group tutoring in addition to the traditional one-to-one method, and a considerable list of accomplishments and programs.

Volunteers serve in the school-year tutoring program, help students with homework, coach candidates for the high-school equivalency tests, help adults read and write English, give English lessons to the foreign born and maintain an ambitious summer program for youngsters.

Here's Lucy. Lucy Scanlon, mother of two small children, began as a volunteer who spent an evening or two each week in a school room waiting for a child to ask for help with his homework. It is a time for patience, as the children are slow to trust. Her response to small overtures was so open, so honest, so free of ulterior motive or condescension that the children — some sooner, others slowly — recognized her as a helpful friend.

Mrs. Scanlon has been a volunteer for Planned Parenthood in Trenton, audited music courses at Princeton, is a time-frustrated potter and a more-than-routine cook. She is a rock climber; she is about to take the Fix-it course at the Adult School and she is a member of Common Cause, the people's lobby founded by John Gardner.

Educated at a girls' school and at Radcliffe, she was a nursery school assistant when she became interested in teaching. She tried volunteer work hoping that it would help her to know a greater variety of people.

"That worked out," she says. "The kids became interested in me; I, of course, was very interested in them. There was an eight-grade girl, for instance, who was really learn-

And Here's Kate . . . Kate Litvack's interests range from the national to the local. She belongs to Common Cause, serves as a Democratic committeewoman and is campaign manager for the Democratic candidates in Princeton Borough. She is a member of the executive board of the University League, a golfer, a gardener, a dog lover, especially a Labrador named Troon. She acted in the Community Players' "The Lady Is Not For

BUSINESS In Princeton

MATHEMATICA TO MOVE

To Princeton Station Park. Mathematica, Inc. will become the first of four major tenants to occupy space in Princeton Station Office Park, Washington Road, in Princeton Junction.

The firm, currently engaged in a variety of economic and computer consulting work for industry and government, has signed a 10-year lease for 25,000 square feet of office space. Its present executive offices are at 1 Palmer Square.

In the past year, Mathematica, Inc. participated in designing the New Jersey lottery and developing the New Jersey Negative Income Tax Project and the Seattle Income Maintenance Project.

In addition, the firm provided economic consulting to NASA on evaluating the space shuttle, and served a long list of commercial clients and Federal, state and local municipal agencies.

Move to Consolidate. According to Mathematica's President, Dr. Tibor Fabian, the move will enable the company to consolidate the three present locations in Princeton into one central headquarters complex. The firm's one hundred locally employed personnel will move to the new offices by early 1972.

The company will occupy two double-story office buildings placed at right angles to each other and connected by a fifteen foot breezeway.

The all steel and masonry construction is highlighted by dark brown brick interspersed with light stucco and tinted windows. A two-story lobby with a wide expanse of bronze glass serves as the entrance to the company offices.

Princeton Station Office Park, now under active development, will ultimately contain five office buildings constructed around a central Service Mall.

The Mall will house an employee cafeteria with executive dining rooms, as well as meeting facilities, a print shop and copy center, and banking facilities.

Daniel R. Goldenson, of Princeton, owner and developer of the Park, feels that the entire development will be completed within two years.

Princeton Station Office Park is located two miles from Route No. 1 on Washington Road in West Windsor Township. The development consists of 8 1/2 acres and will contain 100,000 square feet of office space with on-site parking for 300 cars.

DRUG SURVEY PLANNED

By Response Analysis. Response Analysis Corporation has been awarded a major contract by the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse.

The contract is for the first nationwide social research study of adult and youth attitudes toward and use of marijuana, as these relate to the values, and way of life of user and nonuser groups. Findings will provide guidance to the Commission in its recommendations next Spring when the Commission submits its first report to Congress, focused on legal and policy issues connected with marijuana.

During July and August, Response Analysis staff, Commission members, and three consultants from the Public Health Schools of Columbia University and University of California at Berkeley formulated issues, conducted group interviews with teenagers and adult users and nonusers, and prepared the questioning materials for the full scale nationwide study.

Beginning this week Response Analysis interviewers around the country are being personally trained to conduct face-to-face interviews with 3,000 adults and 600 young people, ages 12 to 17. Respondents for this study have been preselected by means of the Response Analysis national probability sample, which permits these numbers of individuals to precisely represent all adults and young people throughout the country.

The Congressional Commission was established by the Comprehensive Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act of 1970. Nine of the 13 Commissioners were appointed by President Nixon, who named Raymond P. Shafer, former Governor of Pennsylvania, as Chairman. Senators Harold Hughes (D-Ia) and Jacob Javits (R-N.Y.), and Representatives Paul Rogers (D-Fla.) and Tim Lee Carter (R-Ky.) were appointed to the Commission by their respective legislative bodies.

The first year of Commission activities are devoted to marijuana, the second year to studying other drugs.

NEW OFFICE TO OPEN

For Professional Roster. Beginning Monday, the Professional Roster will be open for business in its new headquarters on the second floor of Stevenson Hall, 83 Prospect Street.

Office hours will be from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and the telephone number, 921-9561. All women interested in finding employment to suit their professional skills are invited to register.

The Roster, a voluntary, non-profit organization, serves as a clearinghouse for professional jobs open to women in the Princeton area.

It also offers to employers, free of charge, information on the availability of a pool of talented and skilled candidates for jobs on a full-time, part-time or free lance basis. More than half of the Roster's registrants hold advanced degrees, and many have more than one job skill.

Among the fields in which Roster women are qualified and experienced are: advertising, public relations, mass communications, the arts, writing, both technical and creative; publishing, translation, mathematics, statistics, computer, library, social, physical and biological sciences; teaching, pre-school through college; accounting and office management.

As an integrated "town-gown" facility, the Roster's new location on campus dovetails with the established Stevenson Hall program to provide expanded opportunities, contacts and activities for women and for Princeton women undergraduates in particular.

would help her to get to know the community outside the University.

"What I like about the Study Center is that it gives every child a chance to get through school. I think it's sad for a child to feel incompetent. Almost everyone has some difficulty in some subject. I still can't do problems with passenger miles with them!"

For this year, Mrs. Litvack has undertaken two Study Center jobs. She is recruiting volunteer tutors and will run the tutoring program. Two Seminars serve on her part-time staff. She plans to add small group tutoring this year. While Mrs. Litvack is looking for tutors, Mrs. Scanlon, a member of the nominating committee, is seeking board members who will work. If you like young people and can help, call Kate Litvack at 924-9375 or Lucy Scanlon, 924-7695.

3 SCHOLARS WELCOMED

By AFS. Three American Field Service International Scholars have settled into Princeton area homes and are attending Princeton schools for a year.

Rhys Allrenshaw of Canberra, Australia, is staying with the Thomas Gopsills on Rollingmead, and is a senior at Princeton High School with his host "brother," Tom Gopsill. Lorelle Harker of Northumberland, England, is with the William Wethersbys, Western Way, and attends senior classes at PHS with Amanda Wethersby.

Students at PHS and PDS who are ages 16 to 18 and interested in an opportunity to experience home, school and community life in a foreign country should inquire of William Raufberg at PHS or Mrs. Joan Baker at PDS for information and preliminary application blanks for the Americans Abroad Program. The deadline for the completed forms is the end of September.

Princeton AFS marked its 25th anniversary with an international supper this Wednesday at All Saints' Church for the new AFS scholars and the students who travelled to Great Britain this summer with the English Speaking Union Exchange program. Committee members are Liz Chace, JoEllen Lavine, Ellen Sussman and Jan Hall.

The 25th anniversary of the AFS International Scholarships is being observed at a celebration and convention this week in Atlantic City at the Chalfonte-Haddon Hall. Princeton representatives are chapter vice-president Richard Baker and Mrs. Baker of Armour Road who spent two days this past summer with the family in Finland who had been their daughter Eileen's "family" in 1959. Their son Dick lived with Indonesians in 1960 in the AFS Americans Abroad program.

Relaxing, certainly, when you occupy an easy living, easy keeping one story 3 bedroom rambler which has a brand new kitchen and new decorating. You'll also relax when you learn that the move-in condition can be converted to early possession.

OPEN WIDE - AND SAY BILCO

What's the difference between a dead end cellar and a basement for living? Direct access to the great outdoors.

The modern all-steel BILCO Basement Door keeps unnecessary traffic out of first floor room, lets your inside stair serve only inside traffic. Your basement is always convenient and useful. Tools, lawn furniture, bikes, sleds — everything moves easily in and out. Makes your basement safer, too.

For more living space downstairs — and less wear and tear upstairs — put a BILCO Basement Door on your home. Call us for free literature showing how to add the complete entrance or to replace your wooden hatchway if you already have the basement entryway.

These Days a Chicken in Alexander Street Would Be a Dead Duck

Busy Alexander Street, a route for Penn Central commuters, drivers heading for Route One and postal trucks, is no place for a chicken today.

But around the turn of the century, when it was called Canal Street, because of the Delaware-Raritan Canal at its bottom, chickens, like the one here, could safely stroll down its dusty right-of-way. The view in this picture, made from an old plate belonging to the Historical Society of Princeton, is north, just past the intersection of Dickinson Street.

Well educated guesses by Historical Society members, drawing on bits of available information, identify the buildings as (from left): Benham Blacksmith Shop, Stillwell Carpenter Shop, Ross Plumbing Shop and Kilfoil Meat Market and Slaybacks Grocery. The identities of the two men and boys by the blacksmith shop are unknown.

Payne Hall, built in 1923, and housing missionary apartments, stands on much of the site now.

space and somewhat less exposure. However, the intent of bringing increased natural light into the building has been maintained.

Special Construction. During planning for the reconstruction, structural engineers, Geiger Berger of New York, confirmed that all existing floors and interior partitions left standing after the fire must be removed and rebuilt.

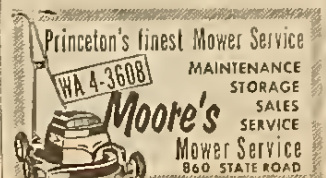

A special construction technique has been devised, using the existing floors as shoring for a new independent structural system in lieu of the customary erection of temporary forms and scaffolding. The new wall opening to the east would then permit easy dismantling and removal of the existing structure after the completion of the new structural roof system.

More conventional reconstruction methods would have involved demolition first, temporary shoring, a new structural floor system, and a new roof last, thus leaving the construction work unprotected through much of the winter. Present funding -- totaling some $570,000 from fire insurance -- will permit the closing in of the building and the furnishing of the first two floors, including air-conditioning. Additional funds are currently being sought to furnish and equip the upper two meeting room floors in hopes of producing a fully completed building by September, 1972.

Known to generations of Princeton alumni as "The Halls," Whig and Clio -- facing Cannon Green and Nassau Hall -- occupy the approximate sites of the original 1837 wooden structures, built from designs of John Haviland of Philadelphia, with their architectural features copied from Greek temples of antiquity.

Princeton's "Debating Halls" the American Whig Society and the Clio Society until their merger four decades ago, have a continuous history of over two centuries. Founded before the American Revolution (1765) as the Well-Meaning and the Plain-Dealing Societies, the latter in 1769 changed its name to the American Whig Society, and in 1770 the Well-Meaning Society took the name of the Clio Society.

REBUILDING TO BEGIN

On University's Whig Hall. The reconstruction of Princeton University's 80-year-old Whig Hall -- which was gutted by fire nearly two years ago -- is expected to begin some time next month.

Working drawings for the reconstruction, including an unusual "open porch," have now been completed by the New York architectural firm, Gwathmey Siegel; contractor for the work will be Lewis C. Bowers & Sons, Inc. of Princeton.

Whig Hall was constructed in 1893, together with its twin marble structure, Clio Hall, to replace similar frame buildings built in 1837. It serves as headquarters for the American Whig-Clio Society, founded in the 1760's and the oldest college political and debating society in the nation, which, since the November, 1969 fire, has been housed in temporary offices elsewhere on campus.

A series of program and design review sessions followed the initial publication of the reconstruction proposal last February, culminating in a public presentation by the architects in May.

During this design development period, the original proposal for an "open porch" facing east was modified to provide some additional interior

Cinemascope? At McCarter? (But No Popcorn)

Darkness is most certainly not upon the face of McCarter. No repertory, of course, but plenty of light and action otherwise, and some important new theatre equipment to make life lighter and happier all around.

McCarter film fans will be happiest about the new "at-long-last" projection equipment. No more home movie effects. The theatre has brand new 16-mm projectors, a Cinemascope screen that can be masked down for standard films, a new sound system for films and rock concerts, new speakers and new wiring back stage.

Rock concerts will mostly be given in McCarter this season, rather than in Alexander Hall. That's because weekends at McCarter are now free, due to the absence of repertory.

New basic black dress for the stage is probably the most exciting purchase from the staff's point of view. These new "legs" and "borders" are the tall black velour hangings that are the basic costume of

The old ones — and nobody remembers how old they were — have been in tatters and dust and holes for a long time. Young audiences have sometimes tittered as dust clouds from one of those black hangings, and what actors themselves said about the tattered auditorium, about 100 of the seats have been repaired.

These are McCarter's original seats, and sometimes the upholstered back comes loose from the frame, and now and then an enthusiastic teen-ager will pry a seat number loose as a souvenir (a kind of reverse tribute to McCarter, and how much a visit there can mean to a youngster) and once in a while a whole arm goes.

The bill for all this comes to about $15,000. "We are very fortunate that the University could find this money in tight times like these," says William Lockwood feelingly. Mr. Lockwood is Program Director at McCarter this year and one of the triumvirate charged with keeping the show on the road. Or in the theatre . . . Nancy Shannon is another point in the triangle: she's general manager.

Meet Mr. Tech. The third and newest member of the company is Ralph Blum, graduate of Princeton High with the class of '67, and a June, 1971 graduate of Carnegie Mellon, the famous institution that has turned out so many top-flight technical theatre people. "He's our one-man production and technical department," Mr. Lockwood announces.

"You concentrate entirely on production at Carnegie Mellon — every aspect of it," Mr. Blum explains. He was C.M.'s first student (or faculty member, for that matter) to go on the road with a professional company. He was electrician in the touring company of "The Price" and prop master with "Forty Carats."

News Of The Theatres

He's been in theatre since his sophomore year at Princeton High, reading technical books on his own, and teaching himself the theatre trade. He spent three summers in stock, and during junior and senior years at the high school, working with Director Don Evans, he did everything that needed doing backstage.

And he's been around McCarter before, working with the P.J.&B. production of "Finnian's Rainbow" and a couple of times each with the Columbus Boychoir's Christmas presentations and the "Nutteracker" holiday ballet.

"He's a triple-threat man," Mr. Lockwood says. "We'll have so many road shows this season that his experience on the road as professional stage-hand will be invaluable. Then, his work with students at Carnegie Mellon will be helpful for the Triangle Club show — the technical person assigned to that show needs experience working with students — and finally, Ralph is professionally versatile. He can read drawings and plans for building a set, develop his own lighting plot or read someone else's. We're lucky to have him."

Mr. Blum disclaims particular interest in any one backstage area, but he does seem to have a special fondness for the lights. He spent one whole weekend on McCarter's switchboard.

"The switchboard hasn't been dug into like that in ten years," he muses.

For Students. Back on the box-office side, the new McCarter season promises to keep faith with the teen students who have tromped through the theatre's matinees for so many years now.

"Twelfth Night," "Romeo and Juliet" and "She Stoops to Conquer" will be given in January and again in April by the National Shakespeare Company, a touring group of professionals which touches college campuses with full-length productions of the classics.

The company will be in residence for two weeks at a time, giving one or two matinees a day for high school students. The group brings its own portable stage, by the way. Just move it on and off at will.

FILMS BEGIN

At McCarter. Two special weekends of revivals will christen the new projection equipment at McCarter before the regular international and

Chekhov Belongs to Players-- You Might as Well Join, Too

Over 150 people milled around Sunday at the "picnic" (rain moved it indoors) held by Princeton Community Players as the start of a membership drive.

While the sandwiches and punch were going around, Players' President Philip Paul announced that Chekhov's "The Seagull" will be the first offering of the new season.

Production dates are Friday, Saturday and Sunday, November 12-13-14, and the following Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 18-19-20.

Auditions for parts will be held at the Players' first general meeting on Sunday, September 26 at 8:30 p.m. in the Unitarian Church Little Theatre (Cherry Hill Road just off Route 206). Auditions will continue the following Monday.

and Tuesday evenings — September 27 and 28 — at the same time and place.

Sallie Brophy, who did last season's "Endgame" for Theatre Intime and "Hardesty Park" for the Players, will direct.

Coming Attractions. Other productions this season will be Anouilh's "Ring Around the Moon," Herb Gardner's "A Thousand Clowns" and a spring production to be announced. Under consideration are the "Lysistrata" of Aristophanes and Giradoux' "Madwoman of Chaillot."

Join Us! Anybody who wants to work the technical side — costumes, lights, sets, even publicity — is invited to the September 26 meeting.

"In fact," and Philip Paul pauses with a cup of coffee to muse about the Players. "We'd like to have many people with many wide interests in the Players. I think a lot of people enjoy the theatre but really don't consider themselves actors, so it hasn't occurred to them to join. But there is so much else, you know! We can use people with skills in advertising, promotion, hi-fi equipment, sewing, photography. . . ."

Mr. Paul, who came to Princeton 12 years ago from considerable theatre experience in his native England, thinks the Players is a wonderful place to meet people.

"Princeton is a rather transient community, with people coming and going and only living here a year or two, possibly, and the Players is a fine group for making friends. Also, Princeton is a stratified community, and the Players is a group where the various social strata can merge."

Players members meet once a month on Sunday evenings. This season, there will be speakers, or perhaps an evening of one-act'ers or the acting of a scene from a full-length play.

"This gives members a chance to direct and to act, as well," says Mr. Paul.

Acting workshops will make the Players a learning, as well as a doing group.

"Community." Also, Community Players hopes to reach out into the community in longer ways. Last year, the group did "Mary Ponders" for various churches in the area.

This year, the actors would like to take plays into prisons as part of a new project now under way by the New Jersey Arts Council.

"I want to emphasize the 'Community' in our name," is the way Mr. Paul puts it. "We'd like to draw more of the community in to see our plays, as well as to take productions out to places like prisons. We don't seem to have a following—we're thinking of a survey to find out just what the town would like from us."

BRECHT BACK

New Brunswick Theatre. Brecht West is still at 61 Albany Street in New Brunswick, and the little coffeehouse theatre will begin drama classes and workshops for young people and adults starting later this month.

Regular productions will start this Thursday, September 16 with a musical review, "Divided We Stand."

The Youth Drama Workshop will be held Saturday mornings, and anyone who is interested is invited to call the theatre or stop by this Saturday and next Saturday, September 18, from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. The telephone is 201-828-2750.

An Adult Acting Class will be held Sunday evenings starting September 26. Classes for children will start in October and details will be announced later.

Both Adult and Youth workshops will run for 12 weeks. The enrollment fee is $40 for each.

June Barfield, former student of Uta Hagen and Martha Graham, will direct the Youth Drama Workshop. Miss Barfield appeared last fall with the LaMama troupe in New York, has appeared both on films and television and portrayed various characters in the Villager's Barn "Under

IT'S NEW To Us

AUTUMN BEGINS

With Fashion Shows. Indispensable little costumes for a busy life and glamour clothes for evening went flashing down the runway at the Robert Varga fashion show last week in his Lawrence shop on U.S. 1 and Hopatcong Drive — approximately opposite the Lawrence Shopping Center.

From Anne Klein, brown suede pants in the blue jean cut, with small brass studs at the waist and down the side seams. From Beane Bazaar, a black wool blazer worn with a fat pussycat bow at the neck and a long, "girdle" skirt. The skirt is plaid, slit up to there, and the girdle has the leather look.

A number of cityshapes were shown in dark wools and gabardines. John Anthony's brown gabardine dress has a bolero-length jacket with four buttons at the narrow sleeve, a flattering, soft bow at the neck and a flare to the skirt.

And a slim, red onion tweed coat and dress from Oscar de la Renta, with the deep red appearing in a solid color as shoulder strap trim on the coat and as the jersey top to the dress. ($290.)

The Teel Traina boutique was represented by a number of items. Among them a ribbed sweater paired with a pattern-weave skirt that was especially attractive.

The coats at Robert Varga have a certain elan — the Oxford gray tweed by Calvin Klein with a deep back pleat and a fat fur collar. Wear it with an elegantly simple gray wool jersey dress from the Donald Brooks boutique.

DOWN THE RUNWAY at the Robert Varga fashion show comes one of Varga's own designs, a shirt silk taffeta in black and white, with a skinny black top and a circle of bright green at the waist. Fashions by Donald Brooks, Anne Klein and other American designers were also shown.

From Anne Klein, again, a melton cloth coat in a classic style ($180) paired with a plaid kilt featuring a deep waistband ($62).

For gadding about, a beige wool suit with epaulets and tab pockets fore and aft, teamed with a navy skirt; or black-and-white houndstooth check suit trimmed in Nassau Hall orange at the Lapels, on the pockets, and around the Mao neck. ($125) Add an orange derby on your head.

The Varga fashion show featured a whole series of black-and-white costumes — a long-jacketed dinner suit of black knit, accented with a white ruffle. The straight skirt has a long slit. Another dress combines a black hacking jacket with a jumper dress cut with a deep V neck and a low-flare, full skirt. Geoffrey Beane's "fencer's dress" drew applause.

The blazers at the Varga show were captivating and came in infinite variety. Most were softly fitted at the waist. There's a suede in a deep, rich green, top-stitcher in white — to be worn with a heather-weave green skirt, if you like. Or a toasty suede ($60) to wear with a flair skirt of printed challis.

Choose a crimson blazer, edged in black, or Luba's black blazer with a velvet collar and wide lapels; or a double-breasted blazer in Lincoln green, piped with leather (a front-pleated, wrap skirt in plaid was shown with this, augmented by a snug crocheted cloche).

Well, you can have a blazer and a brown-and-white tweed dress, with some of the tweed trimming the jacket lines — or a knit blazer, designed with high lapels, two slits in the back and softly piped in a contrasting color. And a blazer in camel, slimly tailored. ($110) to wear with a brown knit slip skirt.

From Donald Brooks' bazaar, a black sequin blazer ($110) to top off a long, full dress of matte jersey ($145), and a long cardigan in black sequins to wear with a softly-gathered skirt.

Evening coats at the Robert Varga show included a white wool cut in classic princess lines, with narrow black trim; and another in lustrous black velvet with a poetic atmosphere about it.

For the fun of it, a gold suede trench coat.

ALTERNATIVES

On Spring Street. Aqua beds that you can buy in kit form or completely finished; lamb-skin throws; "Reflectabed" which employs shimmering Mylar to give an endless pattern of reflections; environmental graphics; the Alpha Machine that teaches you how to relax — this is Alternatives, at 3 Spring Street.

Located in a long room on the basement level. Alternatives is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Michael Beatty of Princeton Junction, and its goal is to provide some alternatives to the usual housefurnishings.

From Aquarius Products, Inc. of New York, the finished bed at $199. The total Aquabed system is guaranteed for three years.

The choices are according to your budget and skill. The kit includes everything but the wood bed frame, which a number of handy husbands seem to be able to build with no problems. The unfinished bed ($169) has the frame but it is not sanded or stained; and the finished piece includes frame, mattress, liner and heater all ready to take home.

There is also the waterbag of heavy vinyl known as the "Crystal Ship," designed for outdoor use only. Run and jump on it with all your weight; or snooze in the sun, suitably comfortable. ($24.95) It is not harmed by the sun, as you might think.

The environmental graphics are supergraphics — a nude silhouette to stretch around your hallway, or a bomber coming in for a landing along your living room wall. There's the moon, if you want it, or a jungle scene — and other to choose from. The graphics are from 10 feet to 21 feet long.

As for the exotic reflecta-bed, go see it. Think of it as a tent or canopy over a bed, held at the peak with chrome rods. Mylar, silvery in tone, is faintly transparent, yet it also reflects as many as 12 to 14 times.

The Alpha machine has the California touch. You hear a beep when you are relaxed, because you are emitting an Alpha wave. What you do is try to get that mood again; the machine is teaching you how to relax. When a yoga meditates, in that serene mood, he emits Alpha waves.

Milkwood" a few seasons ago. Adults will be directed by Margaret Dawson in scene study, improvisations, and exercises through which the actor discovers himself and his art. Brecht West hopes this class will be the nucleus for a resident company.

Miss Dawson has been associated with the Circle-in-the-Square in New York and has toured with national companies of "Come Blow Your Horn" and "Barefoot in the Park." She has also acted on television and in films.

PLAYHOUSE

McCabe and Mrs. Miller (now playing) An odd but beautiful-looking movie about a man and woman who successfully introduce vice to a mining camp in the Northwest in the early 1900's.

Warren Beatty, as John McCabe, rides out of the snowy wilderness in the mining camp known as Presbyterian Church. It's about to turn into a town and McCabe stocks it with three bedraggled prostitutes. He finds an aggressive partner in Mrs. Miller (Julie Christie) who imports a new crop of girls from Seattle. Eventually "outside interests" want to buy them out.

The plot is tawdry, the dialogue often crude but in sharp contrast, the photography is extraordinarily beautiful. The town of Presbyterian Church, as it develops, is more fully realized than any of the picturesque characters who make their way through the muddy streets.

GARDEN

A Gunfight (now playing) is a fine, sly western featuring Johnny Cash, who's a natural to fill the John Wayne shoes. Kirt Douglas is the famous gunfighter, now retired and living quietly with his wife and son. He's a bouncer in a small town bar in the west — and in comes Johnny Cash — also a notorious retired gunslinger.

The townfolk speculate on a possible shootout, but the retirees scoff at the idea. Until that is, Douglas discovers that a contest could be a terrific moneymaking proposition. The town explodes with excitement.

PRINCE

Carnal Knowledge (now playing) is a comedy by Mike Nichols and Jules Feiffer about two males who have been preoccupied with sexual gratification from college days in the 1940's until 20 years later, when, after a wife apiece and many mistresses, they are still searching.

It's a commentary on modern morals, often done with wit and spice. The format is a series of skits, all variations on the battle of the sexes theme.

Ann Margaret gives an amazingly good performance; Candice Bergen is the foil for the two protagonists, Arthur Garfunkel and Jack Nicholson.

INK DRAWING by Lonnie Sue Johnson. Part of the current show of works by young artists at the Artisan.

ART In Princeton

THE EARLY FALL SCENE

At The Artisan. A group show by young artists is often as interesting for the range of skills and perspective it reveals as for the individual works in the show. The current show at the Artisan is no exception. Covering a wide range of talent, the show is made notable by an exciting collection of drawings by a very young Princeton artist.

Lonnie Sue Johnson, a 21-year old student at the University of Michigan, has created drawings and prints that are aesthetically pleasing and witty at the same time. People, furniture, buildings and a large variety of ordinary subjects are endowed with a special charm and whimsy by the pen of this talented young artist. Finely wrought lines, textures and well-placed tonal areas are all utilized by Miss Johnson for a very pleasing result.

Acrylic paintings by Peter Allen, watercolors by Suzanne Kelley and paintings by Louise Lifschultz are included in this exhibit. A small collection of sculptured buses by Richard M. Gibbs, done to the scale of Tonka Toys, with outgrowths of hands and mechanical parts are worth mentioning as unusual residents of an art gallery.

At Gallery 100. Gallery 100 is currently exhibiting a melange of prints and paintings from earlier collections. Indian prints, Russian graphics and a wide variety of styles and techniques are on display.

A collection of brides and grooms, portrayed in large paintings are notable. Anne E. Parker presents a personal view of the marriage couple deftly executed in acrylics. Exotic cherubs, ribbons and lace, fanciful never-before-seen flowers and brides and grooms with a mystical air are united with rich deep color to present a wedding view not seen before.

A rich use of her medium is the hallmark of this artist. Overpainting, wash, the contrast of the flat opaque and the translucent glaze all combine to give a profound and original view of a traditional subject.

At The Eye For Art. Local artists are featured in the current collection at the Eye for Art. Marv Levitt, Margaret K. Johnson, Richard Kimble, Werner Drewes and Edith Kogan have combined their works to provide an interesting range of graphic techniques.

Margaret Johnson continues to develop her softly colored collographs that always display interesting interrelationships and juxtapositions of simple forms. Contrasts of size and creative use of textural materials and translucent tones are all part of the powerful effects in these simplified compositions.

Werner Drewes' strongly colored woodcuts embody the style of the German Expressionist graphic artists. Vigorous forms, and forceful movements characterize this group of multi-colored landscapes and still life.

Woodcuts by Richard Kimble demonstrate an unusual use of the medium. The artist has developed special inking and printing techniques to create soft edged forms. Softly toned in earth colors, the stylized semi-abstract landscapes are woodcuts with an extra dimension.

Marv Levitt, art teacher at the Princeton Middle School, has created both prints and sculpture for this exhibit. Whimsical fossil-like creatures are presented in earth tones in this series of etchings. Wire sculpture of the human form reveals an interesting and pleasing grouping of acrobats and people at play.

Etchings by Edith Kogan are mainly non-objective, using aquatint and line.

At Gallery of Fine Arts. A collection of mixed graphics by well known artists is currently on display. Tama-yo, Kollwitz, Gregorio Prestopino and Stefan Martin are among the printers whose works are shown.

Small sculptures by Margaret Carseh are included in this exhibit. Mrs. Carseh concentrates on the human form and her collection of sculptured people are small simply formed bronzes.

She has simplified the human form without abstracting and the airy graceful little sculptures seem to float on their pedestals. Included in this grouping is one animal, a cat. The creature embodies the same feeling of lightness and simplicity that exists in the other sculptures.

Two Princeton University professors, Dr. Bruce M. Alberts, 194 Clover Lane, and Dr. Arthur V. Tobolsky, 191 Snowden Lane, have received $2,000 awards from the American Chemical Society.

Dr. Alberts, associate professor of biochemical sciences, has won the Society's 1972 award in Biological Chemistry.

The $2,000 award, sponsored by Eli Lilly and Company, recognizes Dr. Alberts' outstanding work in developing a method for detecting and isolating proteins that combine with the genetic material in cells. This work has led to the discovery of new proteins important to DNA replication and recombination in bacterial and animal systems.

Born in Chicago in 1938, Dr. Alberts received the A.B. Summa cum laude in 1960 and the Ph.D. in 1965 from Harvard University. A Phi Beta Kappa scholar, he was a National Science Foundation post-doctoral fellow for a year at the Institut de Biologie Moleculaire in Geneva, Switzerland, before he joined the faculty at Princeton in 1966 as an assistant professor in biochemical sciences.

Dr. Tobolsky, Russell Weisman Moore Professor of Chemistry won the Society's award in Polymer Chemistry.

Sponsored by the Wilco Chemical Company, Inc., Foundation, it recognizes Dr. Tobolsky's outstanding contributions to studies of polymers (such as synthetic rubber, plastics, and fibers) and polymerization kinetics and mechanisms.

Born in New York City in 1919, Dr. Tobolsky received the A.B. in 1940 from Columbia University and the Ph.D. in 1944 from Princeton University. Joining the faculty at Princeton as an assistant professor in 1945, he was named to his present position in 1965. He is also an adjunct professor at the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn.

The book describes the growth of eastern religions among young people in this country, covering the movement toward new beliefs from Cleveland and Seattle.

Mr. Rowley, a one-time newspaper reporter, has always been interested in religion. A few years ago he was a participant in a commune. This background helped him to interview the many young people and older gurus he talked with across America. He has contributed articles and reviews to many leading periodicals.

Robert Kling, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Kling, 26 Cherrybrook Drive, will attend the Pennington School for Boys as a seventh grader this year.

Eliot Daley, 159 Hickory Ct., has been named executive vice-president of Family Communications, Inc. (F.C.I.). F.C.I. produces the award-winning children's program, "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood" for the 200 public television stations in the United States.

In his new position, Mr. Daley will be responsible for raising funds for the corporation, as well as supervising development of new programs and educational materials.

He is currently working in cooperation with the United States Office of Education to produce a new program series designed to meet the needs of parents and teachers in their relationships with young children.

Mr. Daley, who spent the past year in Pittsburgh as director of development for the corporation, has returned with his family to reside permanently here. He was Associate Minister of First Presbyterian Church here from 1967 to 1970.

He will continue to supervise creative services and write scripts for the Pittsburgh-based "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood", in addition to developing support from corporations and foundations to supplement the U.S.O.E. funding for new projects.

Mr. Daley serves as consultant to The White House Conference on Children, The Urban Coalition, and major corporations regarding children and families. His articles have appeared in a number of national periodicals.

Four area residents have been named to the spring semester dean's list at Rutgers University's College of Agriculture and Environmental Science.

In some of these activities, he will be taking major responsibility where multi-ethnic coordination is appropriate."

A resident of Trenton, Mr. Stone has authored several books on the Black experience in America, including a recently published novel, King Strut. His editorial background includes the editorship of three

After receiving his B.S. Ch.E. from Rose Polytechnic Institute in 1934, Professor Toner, a 58-year-old native of Terre Haute, Ind., continued his studies at Purdue University, where he received his master's degree in 1936 and the doctoral degree three years later. He was called to Princeton after he had taught at Purdue, Lehigh University and New York University.

Lack of Depth Major Obstacle to Future of Tiger Football Team

Awareness that Princeton's 1971 football squad is paper thin has been growing steadily since practice began a fortnight ago, and its personnel deficiencies were greatly accentuated this week with the loss for the season of the big defensive tackle, Carl Barisich.

Even before Saturday's scrimmage with Rhode Island, it was apparent that the first defensive platoon would have to stay healthy if the Tigers were to hold the opposition in check while the defense was rebuilding. Toward the end of the action in Palmer Stadium, Barisich was caught in a two-way block, needed to be helped off the field and then left on crutches. An operation proved necessary Sunday to repair damaged knee ligaments and he will play no more football until his senior year next fall.

A 225-lb. senior, John O'Donovan, has been his immediate replacement, but personnel switches were being considered by the coaching staff this week to add depth to the position. One possibility was the conversion of Jeff Bartosiewicz to defensive tackle. A 225-lb. junior, he was also the victim of a leg injury a year ago, sat out his sophomore year and had been in a two-way battle with letterman Paul Ondrasik for the starting assignment at right tackle on offense.

The loss of Barisich was the latest in a series of adverse developments which appear to make resurgence of Princeton in Ivy League action more and more doubtful this fall. At Blairstown, 210 lb. Fred Ecelestone, a senior letterman who had been counted on as the likely starter at tight end, fractured a bone in his foot without actual contact. He was merely turning sharply, caught his leg in the turf and is now out until well into October.

Ends Juggled. As a result of that injury, sophomore Kerry Brown, a promising split end, has been switched to tight end and must begin to learn blocking assignments duties he never had as the split end on last year's freshman team. Accordingly, the spot that the veteran Chris Montgomery held down a year ago is now being filled by an untested senior, 63 John Solic, with Brown in reserve at least until he masters the art of blocking.

Football Clinic Sunday

A "Princeton Community Clinic" will be staged Sunday afternoon from 3 to 5:30 by Coach Jake McCandless and members of the 1971 football team. Designed to acquaint football fans with the operations of a modern-day college gridiron program, it will begin in Jadwin Gym with a slide commentary, follow with offensive and defensive demonstrations on Frelinghuysen Field and conclude with a camera session.

Basic formation and strategy illustrated on slides will precede outdoor demonstrations staged by Princeton squad members. During the final half hour, the players will be available to pose for pictures and to talk with those attending the clinic.

Those under 15 should be accompanied by an adult. The clinic is sponsored by the Alumni Council and the University Department of Athletics.

LOST FOR THE SEASON: Carl Barisich, 250-lb. lineman whom Jake McCandless felt could become the best defensive tackle in Princeton history, has been operated on for torn knee ligaments and will not play this year.

til he masters the art of blocking.

Saturday's scrimmage also saw sophomore flanker back Bill Skinner carried off the field on a stretcher but the injury was not as serious as it seemed. In the running for the starting job at flanker back with junior Larry Cholel, Skinner has good potential as a pass catcher.

There's Much to Be Done.

Off Saturday's scrimmage with Rhode Island, it was apparent that the Tigers still have a considerable distance to go if they are to establish a passing game. Many of last year's weaknesses are evident again: Rod Plummer still tends to overthrow; his receivers add to the pressure by occasionally dropping passes that come right to them; and the defense is being given far more time than it should to cover while the receivers are being sorted out.

At the end of the afternoon's action, Rhode Island had posted 23 points to 20 for Princeton, and there was understandable jubilation on the part of the visitors, who very rarely beat Brown, the weakest team in the Ivy League. The Tigers were not, however, particularly perturbed, because they used the scrimmage to experiment with their passing game and with players largely untested in game action.

Virtually all of the time that Princeton had the ball was devoted to passing, the great onetwo punch that running backs Hank Bjorklund and Doug Blake provide being used on less than a dozen plays. When given the ball, they showed occasional flashes of brilliance, while a pair of sophomores, Derek Lilly and Walt Snickenberger, gave indication of future contributions to the Tiger's welfare.

The passing was not, however, even good enough to be called satisfactory, and it is on improvement in this department that the success of the 1971 team will hinge. That, and on the extent to which the first defensive unit can hold the opposition from scoring, because after the top 11 players on this platoon (now minus Barisich), there is very little of immediate promise.

Depth Is Lacking. The extent to which Princeton can expect trouble when its reserves on defense take over was quickly demonstrated in the Rhode Island scrimmage. Whereas the Tiger regulars had limited the visitors to a first half and took a 13-0 lead into the dressing room. Fine running by Bjorklund and Blake highlighted a 57-yard scoring drive by the Tigers when action resumed, but shortly thereafter, Plummer threw while off balance, the Rams intercepted deep in Princeton territory and raised their margin to 16-7 with a 22 yard field goal.

The Tigers then added two more TDs, again largely on ground action, taking a 20-16 lead. However, Rhode Island beat the first defense with a 65-yard pass play as many of the Princetonians quit as soon as they saw a penalty flag thrown. It turned out to be an offside call against them, and maybe they'll learn not to let up next time until the whistle blows.

McCandless found the scrimmage "extremely useful," commenting that work on the passing game had been his primary intention. He reported that whereas last year's score at Kingston, R.I., was 35-7 in Princeton's favor, the action had taken place after 33 practice sessions for the Orange and Black. Saturday's meeting with Rhode Island had been preceded by only 18 practices for the Tigers.

Untested PHS Defense Expected to Play Bigger Role This Year

Both Jim Beachell and the Princeton High School football team had a good year last fall.

Starting his third year as a coach, Beachell is in charge of the entire PHS defense. He came a long way last season, cutting the average number of points scored per game against the Little Tigers in half—from 20 points to 11.

The 50% improvement showed up even more dramatically in the team's record: in his first year, PHS won only three of eight games; last year they won five, tied two and lost two. In six of the nine, the opposition scored a total of five touchdowns.

"I learned a lot in those two years," says Beachell, a former PHS player himself. In his first year, fresh out of college and full of ideas, he had to share the assignment with head coach Dick Wood, as the two struggled to fill the void left by former defensive coach Tom Murray, who left to coach the Princeton University 150-lb. squad.

"I didn't know how much authority I had," recalls Beachell. Last year, Wood gave him full reign. Beachell went with a front four pro alignment with four linebackers stacked up behind. It gave him flexibility. "I could shoot a six, seven, eight-man line anytime I wanted," he said. He followed the pros with two defensive backs and a free safety with no primary responsibility. When he moved the talented LouJohn Rossi to free safety, the defense jelled, and on occasion, glittered.

Rely More on Defense. Beachell's growing confidence comes at the right time, because it seems almost certain that the Little Tigers are going to have to rely more on defense than last year. With the departure of Rossi, the all-area tailback, and fullback Lawrence Parker, two who made the PHS attack go last year, the 1971 squad, on paper, is not going to be as explosive as the 1970 team. Last year's eleven outscored the opposition overall by 75 points, racking up 42 and 41 points respectively against Steinert and Notre Dame. A repeat performance simply isn't in the offing.

To bring the defense up to a winning standard, Beachell is going to have to work his magic wand overtime; he is starting with next to nothing in the way of experience.

"It will be an untested de-

PARDON MY FOOT: Dave Fry, the standout kicking specialist for PHS, is expected to cause the opposition more grief than ever, now that the goal posts have been widened five feet. He is a junior.

fense," he said. "We'll be looking to sophomores to help us because we lack depth and we want to avoid using a player both ways if we can."

To make matters worse, Wes McClain, whom Beachell was grooming to call the defensive alignments this year, broke his leg and will be out for the season.

Following are the names of players on Beachell's defensive chart before the start of the season.

Ends: Chris Grazel, Hyette Briscoe, Arlice Hines, Bill Alexander and Richard Guzy. Grazel and Briscoe, who played mostly defense last year, are vying for offensive positions this year. Alexander and Guzy are juniors.

For defensive tackles, Beachell is eyeing Tony Federico, Bart Harris, Scott Ostroff, Jack Seeley, Scott Van Arsdalen, Randy Greene, David Cowan, Tom Mason, John Giannacai and sophomore Danny Poling.

Federico is a veteran linebacker but is slated to start as an offensive tackle. He is co-captain of the team. All his experience, however, has Beachell straining to take advantage of it. He is one of the few who will probably go both ways.

Cowan, a junior, is tagged by Beachell as "a probable starter." Harris played 70% of the time as a defensive tackle last year but Wood would like to use him on offense and Beachell will probably first try to find a replacement from his list.

For linebackers, Beachell reports that junior Frank Caponi has tremendous potential. He also lists Jeff Lewis, Bobby Weisbecker and two sophomores, Angelo Arcaro and Jack Bayer.

Defensive Backs: Steve Sanford, co-captain along with Federico, was used extensively as a halfback and safety last year and was a standout in the latter part of the season but he is scheduled to play quarterback this fall. The same is true of Joe McGuinn who played defensive safety last year and will be tailback this season.

Which leaves Lionel Hammond, Don Owens—both of whom are trackmen and have speed—Leon Robinson, Sam Scott, Greg Kline, Dane Black and Tom Hofgesang. Hofgesang, said Beachell, should be a starter. Kline, a small but shifty runner, may fit in perfectly as a defensive back.

The key words as far as the defense is concerned are inexperience and sophomores—and the hope is that the latter will overcome the former. Between now and the opener next week with Hamilton, Jim Beachell is going to be a very busy man.

Fry The Difference? If the outlook then calls for PHS to hold the opposition to as few points as possible while scoring just enough of its own to win, the difference between a winning and losing season may rest on the toe of junior Dave Fry.

Fry, who lives and practices place kicking year round, has gained weight and experience. "He's a lot stronger this year," commented Wood, who predicted that Fry would be able to hit from 35 and 40 yards out. The temptation to call on Fry whenever the Little Ti-

Inexperienced PHS Squad Behind Schedule

Saturday's first scrimmage with Hunterdon Central proved, according to coach Dick Wood "that we're inexperienced and behind schedule. I still think we have the potential but we are not as advanced as Hunterdon."

The first scrimmage scheduled against Freehold Regional last week had to be cancelled, Wood reported, because it fell short by one day of the interscholastic rule which prohibits a scrimmage within eight days of the start of practice.

Wood went on to comment that Hunterdon's running attack was better than Princeton's and that the PHS passing was poor. Actually he said that they tried very few passes because it rained throughout the scrimmage.

"We've got a lot more work to do but we'll get a lot done this week, I'm sure."

gers get in range will be greater than ever this year because, as Wood points out, the goal posts have been moved five feet wider, from just over 18 feet to over 23. Thus, with the addition of a stronger, more accurate Fry and a wider target, the foot may very well indeed play a major role in the PHS attack.

"Break Down" To compensate for the lack of experience, PHS has one more ace of its sleeve—conditioning. The team may be outplayed but not outlasted.

In assessing his team's outlook this year, Wood remarked, "A lot will depend on injuries. We had a tremendous season in that respect last year; we didn't have one major injury."

It was no accident but the result of hard work. Bill Cirullo, who joined the coaching staff last year just out of the University of Tennessee, introduced tough, up-to-date calisthenics. Every day he gave them large, punishing doses—after regular practice was over.

The team responded, Wood recalled, accepting it as something that had to be done. "They literally crawled to the dressing room," he said. It is on the agenda again this year.

A Look at the Schedule. PHS is not a member of any formal league. As a consequence, it is the victim of considerable schedule churning and this year is no exception.

Cedar Ridge, Madison and New Brunswick have been dropped and replaced with Bridgewater West and Perth Amboy. Also, for the first time in a long while is the October 16 open date which PHS has not been able to fill.

Some old things are still worth a lot of money.

Brass beds are bringing a bundle. People are getting filthy rich selling dusty old clocks.

And the same guy who used to collect Mickey Mouse watches for laughs, is now laughing all the way to the bank.

Then there's the Volkswagen.

The years have been good to the Bug. In fact, the same Volkswagen Beetle that, three years ago, sold for about $400 less than the average economy car, is now worth about $200 more.

It's not hard to figure out why.

After all, when you don't have to spend that much time making a Volkswagen look different every year, you can devote all that extra time making it work better and last longer.

So, if you're wondering whether that old lamp in the attic is really worth something, check it carefully for the initials LCT (Louis Comfort Tiffany).

And if you're wondering whether that old car in the garage is still worth something, check for the initials VW (Volkswagen).

Hun Seeks to Protect State's Longest Football Winning Streak

Dave Leete teaches a course of his own at the Hun School that isn't as controversial as "The Art of Being a Gracious Member of Society" but it commands as much attention among chauvinistic males. It's called "The Art of Winning Football."

But maybe Hun players need a course in how to be gracious after all. They're selfish. They win all the time. In fact, they haven't lost a football game since late in 1966. In the intervening four seasons, they have won 30 and tied three. As a result, Hun owns the longest winning football string in the state.

They're bullies, too. They push other teams around. They ran up 269 points in eight games last season while limiting the other teams to a puny 33. In three of those games, those old nasties like 6-2, 250 pound Greg Cortina and 6-3, 245 pound Dirk Whitehead didn't allow their guests emotions. Both would prefer to play nine games; however, each agrees the break will allow the team to rest up and recuperate from early season bruises.

Wood reports that he knows very little about Bridgewater West other than it is bigger than PHS. Perth Amboy, he says, is more comparable to PHS, has a good football program and some good individual players.

The first three games Hamilton, Ewing, Trenton and the final three Steinert, Notre Dame and Cherry Hill are the same as last year. The first three, according to Wood, all benefit from junior (grades 7-9) feeder schools. By the time the players reach high school as a sophomore they are high on interest and well grounded in fundamentals.

Hamilton with Bob Harris (9.8 in the 100) back and quarterback Shawn McCrae returning "can't help but be good," says Wood. Ewing is rebuilding under its new coach Frank Barren, while Trenton which won the Mercer County crown last year, figures to be strong again under Frank Capraro, who has turned the sport around for the Tornados.

Wood describes Steinert as an up and down club. The Spartans were down last year and together with a large crop of sophomores are due to be up this year. The games with Notre Dame, have always been "tough, even-stein matches" in Wood's words. This year's battle, which may be the last between the two schools, should be no exception.

Cherry Hill East is a big school and a traditional southern Jersey football power. Last year, Cherry Hill blanked the Little Tigers—something no other school has been able to do—and prevented Wood from posting the fewest losses of any team he has coached in the past 10 years. The Blue and White will be pointing for revenge but it won't come easy.

The guess here is that if PHS jells it will defeat Ewing, Bridgewater, Perth Amboy, Steinert and Notre Dame. The best it can hope for among Hamilton, Trenton and Cherry Hill is one victory.

MAN ON THE SPOT: All eyes will be on Hun coach Dave Leete this fall to see if he can guide the Red and Black to another undefeated season. If he succeeds, it would be the fifth year in a row.

to score even once. They're too individualistic. Jackie Petrone, for example, set an all-Delaware Valley area record by scoring 20 TDs and four extra points. He rudely pushed his way past opposing linemen for 1,178 yards in 123 carries—almost 10 yards a clip.

In fact, Hun was so offensive and overpowering that it forced a couple of schools to drop out of the Penn-Jersey League crying "foul". It was also a great football team: a rock solid defense, a great runner in Petrone, a varied attack. If it had any apparent weakness, it never surfaced during the 1970 season.

Leete described it as one of the best if not the best team since Hun began fielding them in 1914. "We completely outplayed everybody we met," he said.

A Marked Team. Without question, however, this very success will make the 1971 Hun squad a marked team. Next to being a winner, there is nothing better than upsetting one. The pressure is building.

No one, of course, is more aware of this than Leete, but it doesn't seem to bother him. This year should be no different, he says. "They have been pointing to us the last couple of years."

The question is. What are the chances of Hun keeping its string intact, of a fifth undefeated year? It's much too early to say but for certain it is going to be harder to pull off than it was last year.

Schedule Is Harder. For one thing, Hun will not get any help from the schedule. Bryn Athyn and Princeton Day School have been replaced by Delbarton and BMI—both far stronger on the gridiron.

For another, Leete has been hit hard by graduation. He lost 22 seniors. On offense he has only three returning veterans—quarterback Alan Chalifoux, halfback Pete Jones and guard Dennis Skrajewski. All three, however, are standouts. Chalifoux and Skrajewski are co-captains.

On defense, the platoon which has played such a vital role in Hun's success, Leete has five returning: Skrajewski, Jones, Greg Rafalski, Chuck Sista and George Harper. Also back, but less experienced are Kevin Apple, a tackle; tight end Bob Bacso; center Mark Goitein; and defensive halfback Boh Higgins. Scott Maylander, a tackle who was off to a fine start in practice, broke his leg and is lost for the season.

Even things over which Leete has no control have conspired against him this fall. During the weekend about 20 of the 35-man squad were hit by a flu virus, causing cancellation of the first scheduled scrimmage Saturday with Hamilton.

Scrimmage PHS Saturday. Hun was scheduled to scrimmage Peddie Wednesday and will scrimmage Princeton High School on Saturday. With the opener against Newark Academy just a week away, every last day hurts.

Chalifoux and Jones are fixtures in the backfield. Two candidates for fullback are Ed Beagles of Princeton and Joe Haydu, the latter up from the jayvees. Rafalski and Sista will battle it out for tailback. However, Sista is momentarily sidelined with "mono". Another omen?

A candidate for the other halfback slot is Jack Mackie, who played on the Hun jayvee two years ago.

HUN QUARTERBACK: Alan Chalifoux will direct the Hun attack for the third year in a row. He is one of three returning starters on offense.

On the offensive line, Leete has only one returnee; Skrajewski. Four who are likely to move up are Bill Mills and Scott Killary, a pair of guards; Alan Cohen and Dave Hock.

New faces are also evident on the coaching staff. Pete Savidge who did so much to forge those formidable Hun lines is now Dean of Men. He has been replaced by Emil Pauli, who captained the Springfield College eleven last year and was an All-New England offensive tackle. He will handle the line.

Also helping out will be Billy McQuade, a former PHS athlete who was a kicking specialist at Juniata College two years ago. He will work with receivers and kickers.

And what will happen to Hun this fall? For Leete, who hasn't even seen his team scrimmage yet, it is an impossible question to answer. But his comment, "I'm finding it hard to get accustomed to kids who aren't 240," is revealing, nonetheless. "We'll have a respectable team," he added.

A final warning to the teams lying in wait to ambush Hun. They should disabuse themselves of the belief that Hun, less gifted in personnel this year, will play it more conservative. The attack, said Leete, will be "wide open."

NEW SEASON AT HAND

For PDS Football Team. After three years of frustration with football on the varsity level, Princeton Day School finally put it all together last year, finishing with its first winning record in the sport, a 52-1 mark and second place in the Penn Jersey League.

A veteran unit armed with ability and desire was able to turn the close ones in its direction, capturing four out of its five victories by margins of less than five points. Unfortunately, after one year of glory, the Panthers will have to begin all over again with a variety of new faces and problems, including a quarterback that was a soccer player until this fall.

Last year's team did not lose that many players, only five to be exact, but they made the offense move with a frequency PDS had never before achieved. This included running backs Terry Booth and John Claghorn, who must have accounted for nine out of every 10 yards POS picked up last year.

The other half of the offense was junior quarterback Peter McCandless, the best passer PDS ever produced and an adept scrambler. Though only a junior, he left to attend And over.

26 on Roster. Some 26 boys are on the roster this fall, still a small number by most schools' standards, but a handful more than PDS has had in the past. Outside of half a dozen, they are all either seniors or freshmen.

Also new on the scene this fall is head coach George Conway, who took over when Dan Barren resigned. Conway doesn't foresee any miracles this fall, but he reports there is no shortage of spirit.

He expects to field a first team, many of whom will go both ways, of seniors and juniors, and a second team made up almost entirely of freshmen. He promises a few surprises, too.

One thing that will work in Conway's favor is the new schedule. Princeton Day dropped out of the Penn-Jersey League after two years of competition, and will play a new schedule this fall. Gone, for example, is powerful Hun which PDS never beat in four tries.

The seven-team schedule has teams nearer in size and ability to PDS, and will give the inexperienced Panther squad an even chance to win its share of games.

Co-captain Kirk Moore, who played in the backfield as a sophomore, and in the line as a junior, will return to the offensive backfield. He'll put his 185 pounds to work in the fullback slot. Conway has also moved Paul Funk, 180, an end on last year's team, into the offensive backfield. A third letterman, 160-pound Rob Gips, returns in the starting backfield.

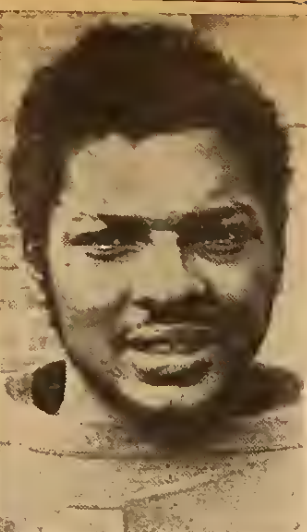

The trio of lettermen will work behind a junior quarterback, new to PDS and new to football. Dave Wagenseil, a transfer from Vermont, was a regular soccer goalie there, and now moves into McCandless' shoes with the job of leading the attack.

Vogt to Anchor Line. Spelling Wagenseil and working as all-round utility back will be 140-pound freshman Tad van Dusen, who'll also go on punt returns and kick-offs.

Big man on the squad, and anchor of the offensive line is 225-pound Ted Vogt, who went all the way as offensive center in 1970. Vogt will be flanked by co-captain John Kalpin, at 175 pounds, and junior Dan Blum at the guard positions.

A pair of returnees man the tackle slots, 185-pound Steve Zudnak and 190-pound Roger Williams. At one end is basketball standout Mark Ellsworth. Keith Thomas, a slender 150, will be at the other.

Several players will work 60 minutes of every game. Zud-nak, Williams and Blum will go all the way in the line, joined by Pieter Fisher, 170, who'll be first string defense, second string on offense. Kalpin will pull back to linebacker on defense, where he'll be joined by Moore. Cornerbacks are Wagenseil and Funk, and Thomas and Gips will be twin safeties.

PRINCETON DAY CO-CAPTAINS: John Kalpin (left) offensive guard and linebacker on defense, and Kirk Moore, 185-pound fullback, will captain the Princeton Day School football team this fall.

Freshmen on Second Unit. John Boyd, an end last year, and John Chilton, who joined the squad Monday, will get a hard look from the coaching staff in the next 10 days.

Conway is building for the future around his freshmen, and the second unit is almost entirely composed of first-year boys. Working in the backfield with quarterback van Dusen will be Mike Hill, Brad Marcus and Steve Mantell. The line will be composed of ends Charlie Lifland and Ralph Brown, tackles Steve Packard and Adam Blumenthal, guards Bill Brown and Fisher, and center Mike Shillaber.

The schedule: Sept. 24, Montclair Academy; Oct. 2, at King School (Stamford, Conn.); Oct. 8, Morristown Prep; Oct. 15, Bryn Athyn; Oct. 23, at Wardlaw School; Oct. 30, at Mitchell Prep; Nov. 5, MacArthur Military.

ETS REIGNS AGAIN

As Business Softball Champion. Educational Testing Service, apparently on the way to building a dynasty in the Business Softball League, captured its second straight championship last week with two victories over RCA A.

While it plays good ball all season long, ETS is at its best when the playoffs begin. Two years running it has finished behind McGraw-Hill, the champion two-years ago, in the regular season standings, only to whip the Eastern Division leader in the playoffs.

RCA A, which clawed its way to the finals, winning a tough three-game series with RCA Astro, has never lacked offensive power, but it was no match for ETS at the plate.

The champions put the first game on ice early with a nine-run outburst in the first inning. RCA found itself behind, 11-0, before it finally broke through for five runs in the fourth. However it could manage another pair the rest of the way and these were matched by ETS for a 13-7 final.

Willie Turner had a triple in the big inning, followed by back to back four baggers by Bill Degler and Joe Leone. Degler also had a three-base hit. Max Hopkins started for RCA, and was relieved by Wally Reichert. RCA was guilty of six errors in the field.

The teams resumed play after Labor Day weekend, with the same result. RCA had its only lead of the series in the first inning, when it led, 5-3. A six-run second inning put ETS on top to stay. The final score was 16-7.

This time the champions did it with singles, 17 of them plus seven doubles. John Barone had four hits, and four other players three each. Bones Gilbert won both games for ETS on the mound.

In a playoff for third place, McGraw-Hill nipped Astro, 13-12.

PIERSON AND PAINE WIN

In Springdale Golf. Washed out on Saturday and playing through intermittent rainfall Sunday, Kester Pierson and Bill Paine won the annual Curtis W. McGraw Memorial Tournament last weekend at Springdale Golf Club. They defeated Norm Schuele and Bill Wilson in an 18-hole playoff by two strokes.

Pierson and Paine shot a 35-35-70, while the losers carded a 40 on the first nine holes but rallied strongly when they turned in a 32 on the final nine for a complete round of 72. Play was based on the net better ball of partners, each man receiving 85 percent of his handicap.

Because of the rain-soaked condition of the course, the

Maybe someday all cars will be built like the Citroen.

Maybe someday.

Maybe it depends on you. When you demand a car, for example, that would ride like a Rolls but costs like a Chevy. One that would take curves like a Maserati but seats a five full passengers. A car that would be in every sense a luxury car—yet burns gas like a tiny Volkswagen (27 MPG).

Maybe you could get that kind of car from Detroit. If you demanded it. Or you could buy one right now. It's called a Citroen. Just go to your nearest Citroen dealer and test drive it.

Learn how good other cars may someday be; and how someday is today with a Citroen.

match began on the 10th tee. A three-stroke lead that Pierson and Paine took there stood up for virtually the entire match. They had a par 4 and not birdie 4, while Schuele and Wilson could do no better than 8, net 7, on the 570-yard hole. Pierson's share of the first place marked the third time this season he has won a major championship at Springdale. He is the club champion for 1971 and also captured the President's Cup.

Qualifying for the Governor's Cup will be held Saturday, with 16 teams starting match play Sunday. Last week's rain postponed the annual Seniors' Tournament indefinitely. Final matches are also scheduled for Saturday in the club's Women's Championship. Low medalist honors went to Claire Masick and Kate Litvak, who tied with 95s.

MARGARET COURT HERE
For Tennis Film, Margaret Court, the Australian tennis star who in 1970 became the second woman to score a Grand Slam, will make a series of instructional films for Scholastic Magazine here in Princeton. Shooting is scheduled to begin Monday at the Varsity and Church Courts of Princeton University.

John Conroy and Eve Kraft of the Princeton Community Tennis Program have been asked by Scholastic to serve as consultants for the film. Scholastic is publisher of the "Tennis Workbook" series developed by the Community Tennis group. The film may be used to illustrate a revised edition of the workbooks.

Some of the top players in the area may have the opportunity to be on film with Mrs. Court and hit to her each day. In the film, the Princeton Program's group approach to learning tennis will be stressed. Mrs. Court began her career in a class of 150 youngsters.

POST 76 ALL THE WAY
Wins League, All-star Game. This was the year that manager Jack O'Neill and his Post 76 Little League baseball team won it all in the junior division of the Princeton Youth Baseball Association. First it won the league title with a 13-1 record. The lone loss came in the second game to Engine Company No. 3. From then on, however, the 76ers were perfect, defeating No. 3, 7-4, in a return game.

The cherry on the sundae was Post 76's 7-4 victory in the annual All-star game. Ken Bartolino, Scott Thompson and Paul Soderman each pitched two innings for the victors, giving up but two hits while fanning eight. Hawley Waterman and Steve Farr hit doubles, and Thompson, Soderman, Bartolino and Bobby Cronin added singles to lead the Post attack.

For the all-stars, Jim LaPlaca, Dave Shilaber and John Silverman each hurled two frames. Together, they gave up six hits and struck out eight. A double by Shilaber and LaPlaca's single were the only All-star hits. Post players who excelled on defense were Scott Trani, Boh McAvonia, Cronin, Soderman and Thompson.

The annual team outing sponsored by the Legion was held at the home of Tom Root. Attending, in addition to team members and parents, was Ted Kopp, commissioner of the PYBA League, who presented each player with a trophy and the league trophy to manager O'Neill.

Players who have played their last season are Soderman, Thompson, Bartolino, Waterman and Steve Farr. Returning are: Trani, Cronin, McAvonia, Mark Taylor, Mark Pitman, Nelson Lam, Doug Ferguson, Steve Smith, Sean Cavanaugh, Woody Clark and Mike Root.

PICNIC SUNDAY
For Lake Carnegie Skippers. The second in the series of fall races on Lake Carnegie Sunday will be followed by a picnic at lakeside.

The fall series opened last Sunday and skippers had to contend with a drenching squall that was followed by periods of dead calm. In the Sloops, Jim McPherson and Hector Poventud, who finished 1-2 last spring, ended in a tie for first.

Dick Hill won the Sunfish competition. Walt Gibson finished second and Club Commodore Dan Mazzarella was third. The club's junior program has started and all Sunfish sailors under 17 are urged to come to the lake Sunday afternoons to compete for the junior cup.

TENNIS POSTPONED
In West Windsor. The fall West Windsor tennis tournaments, originally scheduled to begin this past weekend, were postponed for one week because of the rain. Each tournament will be held one week later with the whole schedule now ending October 31. The fall evening men's tennis league ended last week, when the winners of the 5:45 league, Ralph Bloom, Vic Payne and Bob Nielsen, with Bloom and Payne playing, defeated the team of Bob Little, Ken Syberg and Ken Firth, with Little and Firth playing, 6-3, 6-3.

Correction
—In last week's issue, TOWN TOPICS gave Teague and Hinds, this year's champions in the Adult Softball League, an assist it did not deserve when it reported that it marked the second straight year Teague's had won the league and playoff championship at the expense of Conte's Bar. Actually, Conte's last year won the league by two full games over Teague's and defeated the Icemen in the playoffs, two games to none.

TOWN TOPICS reaches every home and place of business served by the Princeton post office. By their own figures no other Princeton newspaper does half as well.
